DEDICATION

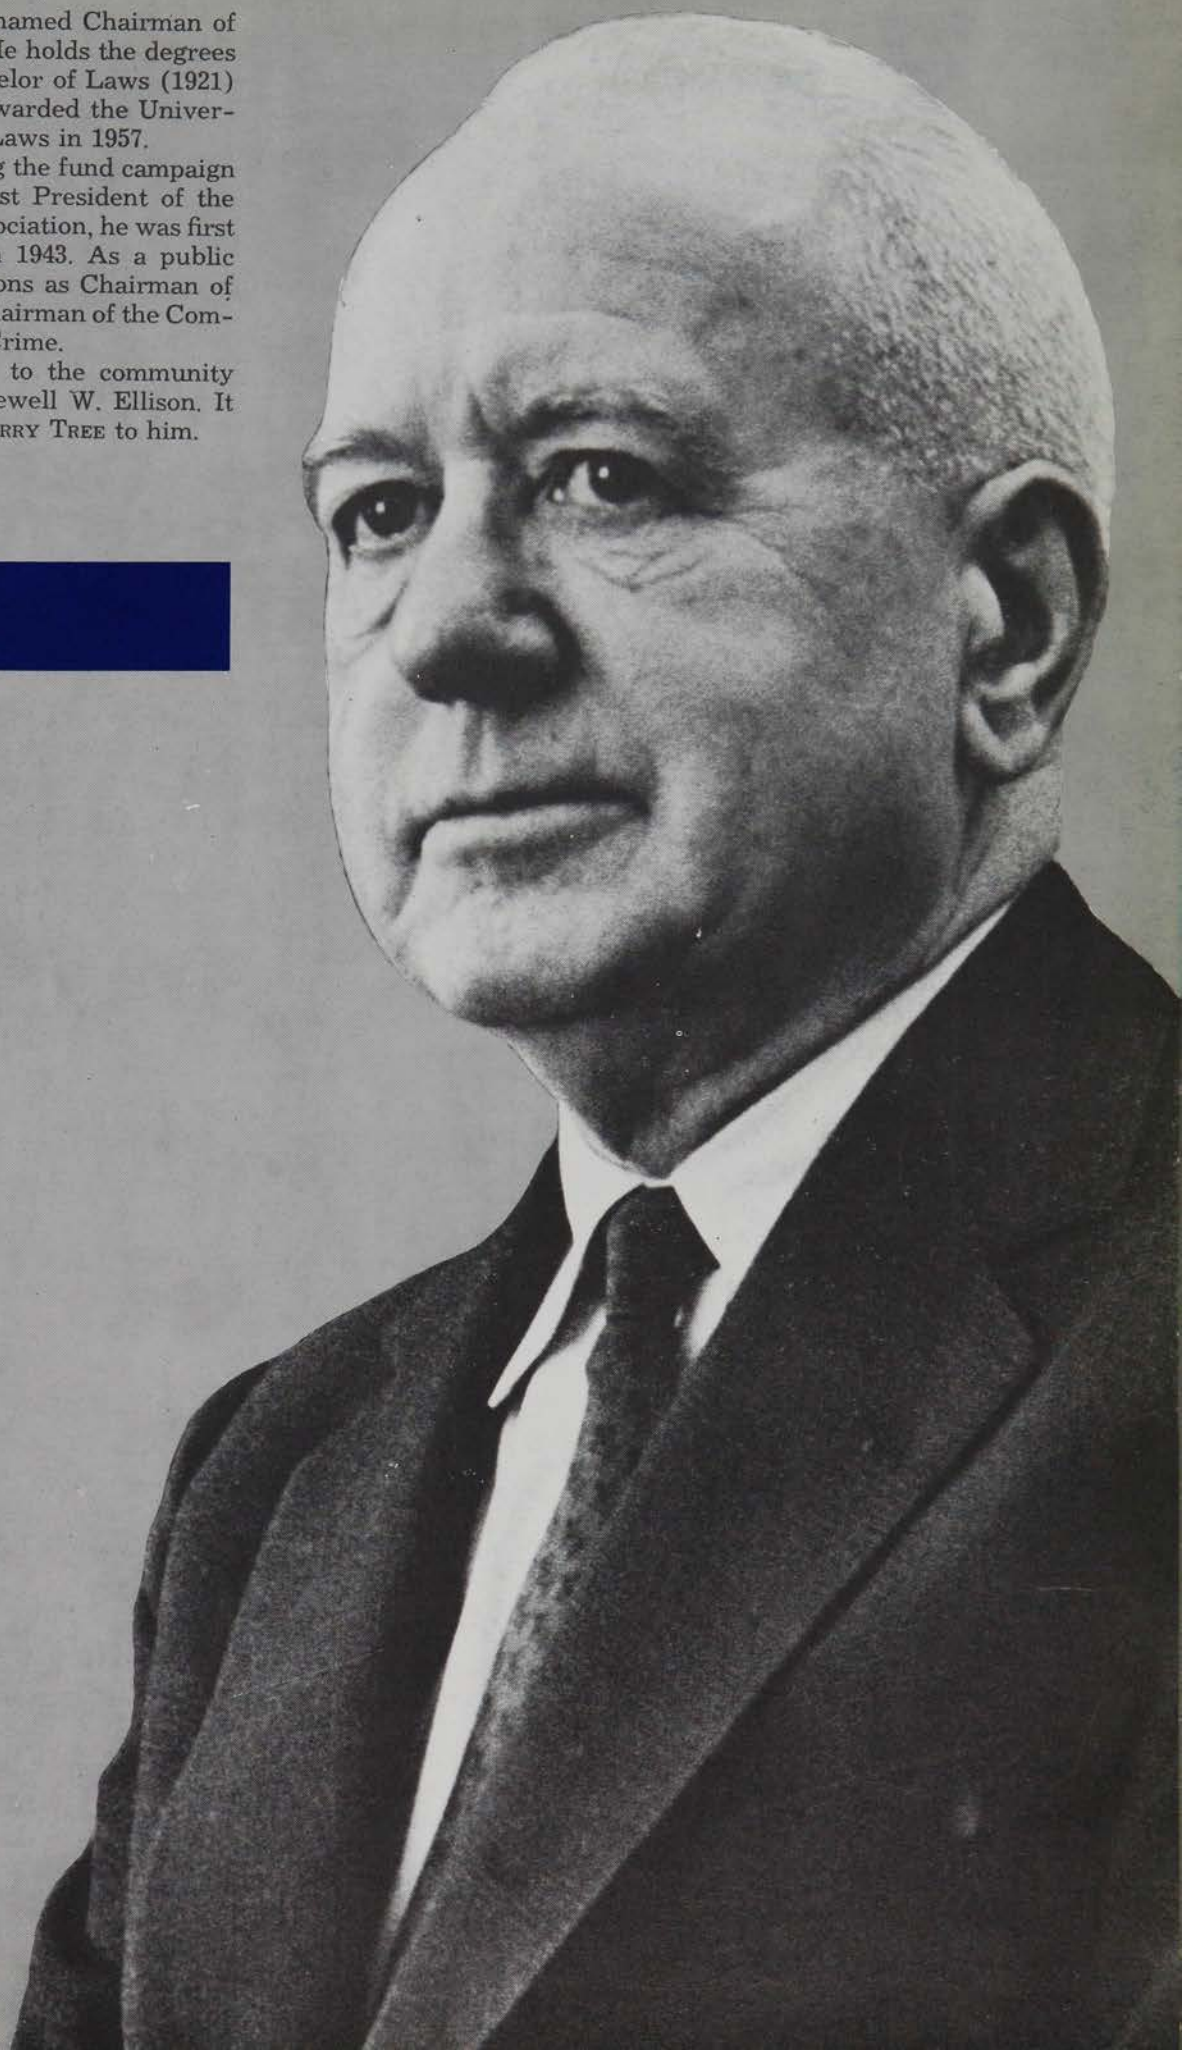

NEWELL W. ELLISON

On May 14, 1959 Mr. Ellison was named Chairman of the University's Board of Trustees. He holds the degrees of Bachelor of Arts (1917) and Bachelor of Laws (1921) from George Washington and was awarded the University's honorary degree of Doctor of Laws in 1957.

Trustee Ellison is presently heading the fund campaign for the proposed Law Center. A past President of the George Washington Law Alumni Association, he was first elected to the Board of Trustees in 1943. As a public servant he has served in such positions as Chairman of the District Board of Elections and Chairman of the Commissioners' Committee on Juvenile Crime.

For his outstanding contributions to the community and the University, we commend Newell W. Ellison. It is an honor to dedicate this 1960 CHERRY TREE to him.

WHO IS THE GW SENIOR?

*The "typical senior"
doesn't exist
at the nation's most cosmopolitan university*

If someone told you that you have just been selected a committee-of-one to name George Washington's "typical senior," you would have quite a problem on your hands. The fact is that no such person exists at this university.

Our seniors come from towns and cities all over the country—and from most of the other democratic nations in the world. They range in age from the late teens to 60, and even older. Their dress varies from Ivy League to the oriental sari. In outlook, these seniors can be classified anywhere from campus cut-up to serious scholar. George Washington, once called a "brain factory," is the meeting place of thousands of different minds.

No one is a typical senior. Despite this, most of us still have some things in common. Most of us have worked while attending the University, for example. This working fraternity, GW's largest, creates many common bonds: night traffic jams, hurried meals, and streetcar studying are familiar parts of the student's daily life. For the more casual members of the senior class, weekend fraternity parties, intramural sports, and unionizing at all hours are more typical aspects.

The drudgery of cramming for final exams is a common bond for most—but that's one we don't like to think about. On a lighter plane, we are drawn together in University-wide events: the Homecoming dance, plays in Lisner, football games, and the rest.

You will find the GW senior all over Washington. At an embassy party you might meet the son of the Indian Ambassador, a political science student here. On Capitol Hill there are any number of part-time politicians who run down to Foggybottom to bone up on the academic side of things. The same is true of most Federal office buildings. The head of the department, the secretary, or the elevator boy might also be the George Washington senior.

On the next few pages, we give you a glimpse into the life of a group of seniors.

GEOGRAPHER ELDON MILLER

Leo's is practically an institution in the life of a GW senior. Letty Katz makes the familiar swing around the cashier's counter.

The Senior On Campus

Many seniors use extra time for student activities. Well known upperclassmen Charles Landon and Tim Mead "conduct a meeting" to set goals for the infant Colonial Campus Party.

Drama productions—staged entirely by students—are excellent at GW. Long planning sessions pay off in fine performances, a future in the theater for some.

Cadet Steve Ridgway, enrolled in the final year of ROTC training, chats with friends. Cadets frequently wear uniform to school.

There's no relaxing on a Fall afternoon for senior Richie Wells. Practice is serious work with a heavy schedule closing in.

Kitty Highland and Louise Huston—window shopping is great when you're broke.

Fred Hanbright works full time to support his family. He's earned his pharmacy degree at night.

MARTIN REICHGUT

Scholarly Marty Reichgut has the knack of combining activities and studies—and as a result, he's gone to the top in both. Marty was president of Omicron Delta Kappa and is a member of Phi Beta Kappa as well. At one time he held down the job of Campus Combo co-chairman and helped set the pace for a record-breaking combo year.

After graduation Marty's ambition is to go on to medical school. Like many students who will be around for a while, this one wishes the University's Redevelopment Plan could be accelerated. "Too bad they don't do some redeveloping while I'm here," he commented.

KITTY HIGHLAND

Here's a girl that deserves the title of "Miss Activities," if the title existed. Kitty Highland has had a hand in almost every major facet of student life on the GW campus. A former Student Council member and editor of "The Hatchet," among other things Kitty is the only girl member of Order of Scarlet, a men's honorary. "The details of her initiation are hazy," one member of the order admitted.

A graduate in foreign affairs, Kitty would like to go overseas and possibly do some more studying. "Mother Highland," as she is affectionately called in some fraternity circles, is a native of Washington, has worked at the Embassy of Iraq. Kitty's most enduring mark here might be some of the "Hester Heale" columns.

CLOSE-UP

ANN MARIE SNEERINGER

Pert Ann Marie Sneeringer is known to most students for her campaign "to bring culture" to G.W. As a Student Council member, Ann Marie felt that too many plays, concerts, and special events were slipping the average student's attention. Sizing up the situation, Ann Marie went at the task of announcing everything going on here.

This active coed has broad horizons: she has lived in many places, from Guam to California . . . after graduation, she would like to study abroad. At first disappointed with G.W., she now says she's happier here . . . "My ideas of what I want out of college have changed."

RICHARD WILLS

Every time the red-jacketed University Pep Band swings into action, their Dixie melodies get bigger and better. Energetic Dick Wills can take most of the credit for this. Dick, a pharmacy school graduate from Pennsylvania, organized the group in the face of formidable red tape a few seasons ago.

Dick is a veteran of Student Council and has a list of other activities as long as his arm. He's a top student as well. "I've always been impressed by the adult attitude of students and the cosmopolitan atmosphere here," he said. Dick might go on to graduate work after a hitch in the Navy.

CLOSE-UP

PATRICIA GUSSIN

The front office of the creaky Student Union Annex is the real nerve center of the University's non-academic life. In charge of this center: Pat Gussin, Student Activities Assistant, and native of Kansas City ("the Missouri side, please").

Master coordinator and jovial assistant to anyone with a problem, Pat somehow found time for classes. She will receive a degree in political science. One thing gripes Pat: "The extreme apathy around here." Her plans after graduation call for "complete retirement for one year."

JEAN McNELIS

"Just a large, impersonal place where you stand in line for everything." That's how Jean McNelis felt about G.W. when she gave up writing ad jingles and came to school here some years ago. Although her ideas haven't changed much, she claims knowledge of how to duck the lines at this stage.

A member of Phi Beta Kappa, Jean has been active in various professional groups on campus. She cares little for most undergraduate activities. Jean is no beatnik, but from a psychology major's point of view she supports the beatnik's "stand against mediocrity."

CLOSE-UP

WILLIAM P. FRANK

Billy Frank is the elder statesman of Greeks—both the foreign and domestic variety—on the G.W. campus. The 25-year-old former president of Sigma Alpha Epsilon is a model fraternity man. Says Bill, "the Greek system is most essential for the well developed younger student—under 27."

A native Washingtonian, Bill thinks this is a fine place to go to school. "After all," he noted, "we have here all the advantages of the Library of Congress, many museums, art galleries—to say nothing of Leo's and Brownley's." With A.B. (business administration) in hand, Bill is ready for anything.

NANCY JEAN HOAR

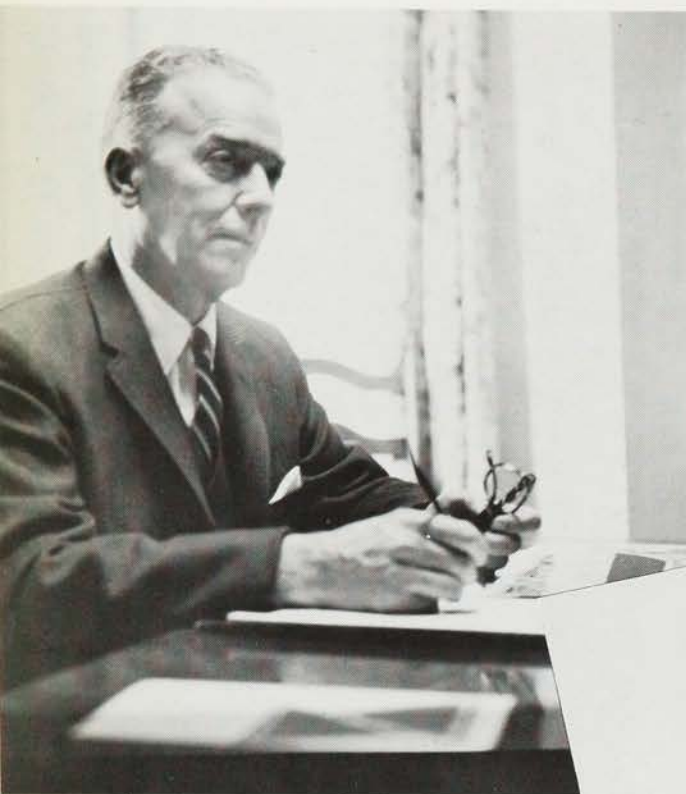

Blonde, blue-eyed Nancy Jean (Koontz) Hoar is the wife of popular football player Marion Hoar. The Pi Kappa Alpha Dream Girl of '58 is friendly, but straight from the shoulder: "I don't like show-offish students and some of the mickey mouse courses here."

Like many a former campus dorm dweller, she's partial to Scholl's Cafeteria ("cheap"), will go out of her way to avoid a meal at the Union. Last year Nancy was honored with the presidency at Strong Hall.

THE GEORGE WASHINGTON UNIVERSITY
WASHINGTON, D. C.

PRESIDENT'S ROOM

To the Class of 1960:

Because of the place this Cherry Tree, with its meaningful and long-lasting values, will occupy in your lives, it is a very real honor and privilege to have these words recorded.

First of all, may I express appreciation that you have spent these vital years at the University. It has been good to work with you. Your cooperation in the classroom, in University activities, and in the day-to-day relations as they have developed, constitute sources of satisfaction.

You complete this phase of your education with the confidence of the University--a trust borne of your associations here. A hearty welcome awaits those who return for graduate, professional, or continuing education. In this connection, a word of advice--in the world in which we live education plays an ever-increasing role in the success of the individual, of the group, and in service to humanity and national interests. It follows, then, that you should give serious consideration to the continuing pursuit of knowledge through study, whether on a formal or an informal basis. Maintenance of the status quo at this time is not a sound objective. We must strive always to move forward, lest we move relatively backward.

I express the ardent hope that your associations with the University in the years to come will grow ever deeper and richer.

Finally then, to the Members of the Class of 1960, I wish for you happy and productive lives, which in the final analysis will be the University's lasting source of pride.

Most sincerely,

LOOKING BACK

Getting there is half the fun

"A funny thing happened to me on the way to work today."

THE YEAR GETS

Back Behind the Plow

It's that time again. Mid-September calls us from every corner of the map, and we flock to Foggy Bottom for another go-round. Somehow we manage to tear ourselves away from lucrative summer jobs or casual vacation lives to brave once again the rigors of Registration. The opening of the school year can mean many things—to the Freshman, it is all new and exciting . . . to the fellow on probation, it is the start of a do-or-die struggle . . . to the hardbitten upperclassman, the old pro, it is a hardly noticeable event. We all come together, by Austin-Healy or Harley-Davidson, by airplane, bus or train—ready to jump into University life again.

SWINGING INTO THE SEMESTER

At the end of the first few weeks, most of us are beginning to get an idea what our classes are all about. This is the season to put away the cords and get out the tweeds, to take in a square dance or a play on Friday night, and to get serious about some of those pesky textbooks. With Rush out of the way, the campus settles down to normalcy—that is, a jam-packed calendar of club meetings, parties, lectures, football games—well, you name it, we've got it.

HOMECOMING

Colonial Spirits bit all-time high

If you play your cards right, you have a chance to pick up a tremendous amount of extracurricular information around here. Such as, how to keep charging ever onward for 48 hours through a once-a-year event like Homecoming. To begin with, any upperclassman will tell you that you must pick up heaps of momentum on Friday, Big-Day-Number-One. Friday brings the Pep Rally and Float Parade. That evening you can take in the play at Lisner. Then get yourself and your date to the football game on Saturday, Big-Day-Number-Two. Somehow you keep going and make the main event, the Ball. By the time the Ball is half over, you've got it licked. You can float right through into Blue Monday.

'TIS THE SEASON TO BE JOLLY

There is no doubt about it—no other institution in this city can boast of the prodigious number of Christmas parties held each holiday season at George Washington. Of course, anything can serve as a suitable party excuse, you just have to think about it for awhile. But Christmas is more than just suitable—it demands festivity and joviality, and Colonials manage to crank out the products by the barrel-load. By the time classes are recessed, most happy holidayers must grope their way home for badly needed recuperation. But the season is not soon forgotten.

SUDDENLY IT'S SPRING

In your meandering down G Street one day, you notice a fetching young lass trot on by in shorts. This is it. But now you know what's coming . . . outdoor romps for the Greeks, sports for the healthier students, sidewalk campaigns for campus politicians, and those unfortunate May finals. Once it is here, Spring flashes by. Then comes the long awaited Graduation. To the graduate goes richly deserved praise. Afterall, it's no easy matter to get a collitch degree.

HONORARIES

WE NAME THEM FOR HONORS . . .

OMICRON DELTA KAPPA

ODK President Marty Reichgut welcomes new initiate Aaron Knott to the national honorary's George Washington Circle.

Whenever active men gather on campus you will usually find a number of ODK's among them. This national honorary represents a cross section of outstanding students on the undergraduate and graduate level. Membership is not solely confined to students. University officials, faculty members, and leaders in government and business are also tapped by the society. They are chosen for demonstrated leadership in their respective fields. ODK taps for membership twice a year. The ceremonies take place in the Winter at Homecoming, and in the Spring at the May Day festivities. The students are selected on the basis of their leadership and scholarship. Dinners are held each semester to initiate the new members. These affairs also give the regular members a chance to get together. ODK members are easily recognizable in formal attire with their black and white ribbons.

FIRST Row: B. Stuart, M. Reichgut, A. Hutchison. SECOND Row: B. Daly, D. Carlisle, C. Scrivener, E. Horowitz, A. Knott.

MORTAR BOARD

The Christmas season brings together Mortar Board members for pre-holiday fun at Woodhull House.

FIRST Row: B. Oliver, M. Propst, C. Baumann, L. Katz, N. Head. SECOND Row: A. Sneeringer, A. Brown.

A pleasant smile and a white flannel blazer are the trademarks of the girls of Mortar Board. The Board is composed of Senior women who have shown an outstanding ability in the classroom and around the campus. These girls are the leaders of many clubs and organizations. They feel that a college education is not found solely in books. Although these co-eds have become active in all sorts of campus activities, they have not failed to be of service to the student body and the University. The Vice-President of the Board is the adviser for Tassels. New members are tapped each spring during ceremonies that are held in Lisner. They are traditionally presented with a rose and a black Mortar Board robe by a retiring member. The University lecture series and the annual Orphan's Christmas Party are sponsored by the girls in this honorary.

IOTA SIGMA PI • ALPHA CHI SIGMA

"Double, double toil and trouble; fire, burn; and, caldron, bubble." This might well be the adopted motto of Alpha Chi Sigma. This professional chemistry fraternity offers its members an opportunity to get together and work on projects of similar interest. The fraternity is composed of men who have a minimum of one and a half years of chemistry courses. Their counterpart are the women of Iota Sigma Pi, national chemistry honorary. Its membership is drawn from students who have had at least sixteen hours of chemistry and are enrolled in an advanced chemistry course. They must have a high scholastic average in chemistry and all other courses.

FIRST Row: J. O'Mara, Dr. Vincent, Adviser; K. Murray. SECOND Row: N. Engberg, President; G. Edwards, President; M. Patterson, E. Bailey, A. DeKonschin.

AESCULAPIAN SOCIETY

Aesculapuis, the Roman god of medicine, is the namesake of this medical society. The honorary was formed in 1958 by a group of GW pre-med students. It was admitted to the official list of University organizations in the fall of the same year. This is one of the very few honorary societies that was founded on our own campus. The original founders were interested in bringing together pre-med students of similar interests. They instituted lectures and field trips to widen the scientific knowledge of its members. Membership is limited to pre-med students who show promise of being accepted into medical school.

GATE AND KEY

"Raise up your old silver goblet with the Gate and Key upon it and we'll have another round of cheer." This is a familiar refrain for the members of Gate and Key. This honorary is composed of fraternity men who have been chosen for membership by their respective social fraternities. They are chosen on the basis of their contributions to their individual lodge, the fraternity system and the University in general. The honorary was established for the preservation and cultural development of the fraternity system at large. New members are tapped at ceremonies in the fall and spring semesters. They are initiated by means of a closely guarded brew whose contents are known to only a select group. Lively and provocative parties are frequently held by the members. These parties involve exchanges with any and all honoraries and sororities. Members occasionally serenade Strong and Madison Dorms to the delight of everyone.

ALPHA THETA NU

Alpha Theta Nu, a scholarship holders' honorary, is made up of students who are dedicated to the highest ideals of education and knowledge. They are recognized throughout the University community as being devoted and hard working students. The group requires that its members hold a University scholarship. Meetings are held on the first Wednesday of each month, and guest speakers are invited to discuss various topics of national and international importance. These discussions prove to be interesting and informative. The honorary also assists in a tea given each Fall for new scholarship students.

ORDER OF SCARLET

The hard-working men of this crew are distinguished by the red ribbon that they wear in their lapels. The members of the Order have performed many valuable tasks for the University. This honorary was founded at the University by the Director of Men's Activities, Dr. Faith. He has continued as the adviser of the society. Dr. Faith founded the honorary because he felt that GW needed some organization recognizing outstanding Sophomore and Junior men. Members are tapped twice a year. They are chosen on the basis of their leadership potential and scholastic achievements.

TASSELS

Members discuss plans for intramural football with Welling Hall representative.

This bright-eyed and eager group of co-eds are members of Tassels. These sophomore women, who had demonstrated superior scholastic achievement and leadership ability during their freshman year, were selected to pledge in September. Under the guidance of the Vice-President of Mortar Board, the pledges learned about campus activities and performed various service projects. They have devoted at least two hours a week to assisting in one of these activities. The projects in which the 1959 Tassels Pledges participated were the Homecoming Committee, Colonial Boosters, a poster committee to publicize University functions, the Christmas Party for Orphans, the committee to make scrapbooks for hospitalized children, and hostesses for the Student Union Dance. Pledges who met the necessary scholastic and service requirements were initiated in February.

PI EPSILON DELTA

Footlights, grease paints, and hot theatre lights are quite commonplace to the thespians in this honorary. They are active in most University drama productions. The main purpose of the group is to foster interest in University drama. To be eligible for membership in Pi Delta Epsilon, students must participate as actors, directors, set designers, stage hands and administrative supervisors. They accumulate points for participation, and when these reach the required number they are considered for membership. Under the supervision of Ed Ferero, meetings are held every three weeks to discuss theatrical plans and problems. The honorary also conducts a drama workshop discussion. Another function is the placement of budding actors and actresses in summer stock productions. The members presented a one act play this Spring.

ALPHA LAMBDA DELTA

The co-eds of this group are remarkable for their fortitude and scholastic endurance. They have all achieved at least a 3.5 Q.P.I. in their Freshman year. Obviously, these girls form a nucleus of future Phi Beta Kappa's. They can usually be seen struggling under a load of notebooks and text books that are so familiar a part of their lives. There are some lighter moments. The girls get together once a month for provocative chatter. Their service to the University includes a Fall Tea for scholarship holders, held jointly with Alpha Theta Nu and Phi Eta Sigma.

SIGMA TAU

The roar of electronic devices, the swift manipulation of slide rules, and pensive glances are all part of the environment and atmosphere that surrounds Tompkins Hall. The men of Sigma Tau form a very important part of this complex. These men are a segment of a very dedicated group of engineering students who work from the early hours to the late hours, pondering the mysteries of the Atomic Age. This national engineers' honorary is composed of Juniors and Seniors ranking in the upper one third of their class. They perform a valuable service to the Engineering School by offering free tutoring service to other students.

ALPHA PI EPSILON

FIRST ROW: D. Lorkerson, J. Berden, P. Brown. SECOND ROW: L. Mace, M. Gorschboth, H. Boone, A. Bray.

A hot oven and dirty dishes pose an everyday headache for most homemakers, but not for the members of this honorary. They just accept them as part of their home economic education. Students are accepted for membership in Alpha Pi Epsilon only after they have maintained a high standing in all courses. This year, under the guidance of Miss Kirkpatrick they collected Christmas stockings for needy children and contributed them to the WRC Doll House. The members are also continuing their plans for their annual Founders Day Luncheon held in March.

PI LAMBDA THETA

Reading, writing and arithmetic is the pass word for the members of Pi Lambda Theta. Their society is dedicated to the preservation and advancement of superior educational processes and scholarship. This national honorary is composed of undergraduates in the field of education. They are engaged in study and research both on and off the campus. Meetings are frequently held to discuss this work. Noted educational figures often highlight these meetings with informative talks.

PI DELTA EPSILON

Next scene, Casualty Hospital

Writing copy, composing headlines, and meeting tight schedules are all a part of the day's work for the members of Pi Delta Epsilon. They work long hours to produce student publications. Their only reward is the printed page and the satisfaction of a job well done. Pi Delta Epsilon gives a banquet each semester when new members are initiated. They also find time at these functions to discuss current journalism problems. Members offer advice to one another on their work. This can lead to heated discussion. The membership of this society represents the voice of the press on the campus. It may be the most influential group of GW's student leaders. The experience members gain in University publications might one day help them as reporters or editors.

STUDENT COUNCIL

After a vigorous, hard-fought campaign and election, featuring for the first time the formation of two campus political parties, the 1959-60 Council members took office last May. Our meetings were a model of parliamentary procedure, even though we sometimes indulged in rather lengthy debates on proposed resolutions, motions, and amendments to the infamous Articles of Student Government. In our function of coordinating and regulating student affairs, we encourage all campus activities, but especially the Pep Band and the new Forensic Intramurals. We deleted the unsuccessful Career Conference from the Student Union calendar and introduced the Hi-Ball, which proved to be just the thing to pick up the slumping Winter social season. In addition, we sponsored such annual events as the Summer Carnival, Homecoming Weekend, and the Holiday Season, and another innovation, the Mock Murder Trial. We wound up our activities with the traditional May Day Program.

COLONIAL CAMPUS PARTY

CCP members at a Friday afternoon meeting. "Eh, no napping please."

"Let's put it this way."

We came of age this year, receiving final approval from the Student Life Committee and increasing our membership to over 200 members. In only our second year on campus, we have made an important contribution to campus politics and government. Party members captured 11 of 19 offices in Student Council elections last Spring, and then saw to it that the party planks were turned into concrete action. From our smoke-filled caucus rooms came the beginnings of such campus innovations as the Young Republican and Young Democrat groups. It is our purpose to increase interest in campus politics, Student Council elections and Student Council sponsored activities. Our nominating convention, appropriately held in the Hall of Government, was a preview of what is to come this Summer in Chicago and San Francisco. Although we may not agree on national issues, we forget these differences to present a united Party front.

ALPHA KAPPA PSI

Our heritage is great, for we are members of the oldest professional fraternity for students majoring in accounting, business administration, commerce, and economics. We strive to promote the individual welfare of our members, to foster scientific research in the fields of accounting, commerce, and finance, to educate the public to appreciate and demand higher business ethics, and to advance the curriculums of business courses available in institutions of higher education. At our monthly meetings we have programs featuring speakers of business and governmental prominence. Our social schedule includes pledge parties and an annual awards banquet in May.

ADAMS HALL

Adams Hall is more than just a residence hall for 138 men. Our Dorm Council attempts to provide athletic, social, and cultural activities of interest to all of us. In an effort to promote school spirit, we supplied buses so that more students could attend the football games last Fall. Our teams made a fine showing in the intramural athletic program. Socially, we had exchanges with Strong Hall. In fact, we exchanged so much with Strong that we have one of their girls, Tibby McFarland, on our Dorm Council. We're just waiting now for Strong and Madison Halls to invite us to serve on their Councils.

FIRST Row: T. McFarland, Social Chairman; R. Wartow, D. Evick, President; W. Ausman. SECOND Row: S. Sugarman, J. Victory, S. Remsburg, R. Walt, L. Fischer, N. Coar.

MADISON HALL

"Is this trip necessary?"

Madison Hall can always be recognized by its empty study rooms, its crowded TV room, its dirty kitchens, and its busy switchboard. You might confuse it with Adams or Welling, seeing the large number of men always found in our lobby. These men have their one big opportunity to visit our boudoirs at our annual Fall Open House. Our professors, too, are entertained at the Faculty Tea. The House Council coordinates the social program and handles cases concerning infractions of the rules. All residents have fond memories of the days the elevator wouldn't work (especially those on the eighth floor), the week the machines in the basement were left unfilled as a reminder to be a bit neater, and those hectic midnight fire drills in pin curlers and bedroom slippers. Points to remember: Keep your ash trays clean and don't try to hide your bermudas under a raincoat.

STRONG HALL

Off to class

Our housemother, Miss Wright, is like the little old woman in the shoe—she has so many children she doesn't know what to do—almost. But she is assisted in her work by our faithful Dorm Council members. They meet every Monday night to handle the cases of those of us who take a wayward path. They also plan the social program of the dorm. Social events include an Open House in the Fall for our parents and friends, a tea in December for our favorite professors, and a picnic in the Spring. Every holiday calls for a celebration. During the Christmas season our drawing room sports a festive-looking tree, and we compete in a door-decorating contest. Even studying for May exams is pleasant when it is done on our sun deck. Our memories include the harrowing experience of being stuck in the elevator and the consequences of forgetting our motto, "When in doubt, sign out."

For the past 15 years, Big Sisters have been giving each new woman student an important asset in her college career—the advice and friendship of an upperclass woman. Our job is to orient the Little Sis to the ways of the University, help her with registration, and get her off on the right foot in classes and activities. Our orientation program includes a Coffee Hour, Tips 'n' Tea with Topnotchers, and the Big Sis-Old Men Mixer. Our nose-bag lunches in the Big Sis Lounge had the added attraction of male guests this year. We continued our program past Orientation Week with a spaghetti dinner in November. The Junior Advisor program was initiated to offer further advice and companionship to Strong and Madison Hall residents. Each year, the Little Sisters make recommendations for the "Outstanding Big Sis" award. Joyce Ormsby was this year's winner, and she received an engraved bracelet.

OLD MEN

The Five Old Men

It's not the age but the mileage that makes us Old Men. During the summer we contacted our sons and then greeted them with a Glad Hand when they arrived on G Street in September. We introduced them to the B.M.O.C.'s at the Celebrity Smoker and to our female counterparts at the Big Sis-Old Men Mixer. By requiring Old Men to have a 2.0 scholastic average and one activity, we can be sure that we are providing capable guides to new male students in their first few weeks at GWU. Since our organization in 1955, membership has grown to 185 Old Men, ready and willing to make Freshmen feel at home at GWU.

Posting the glad tidings

School spirit at GWU is kept at a high pitch due to the constant efforts of the Booster Board. At 12:30 on any game day, Carolyn Tucker is seen leading the Pep Rally, calling roll of the Greeks, and giving away beer mugs. At 7:00, Pat Gilliam leads the clever Carvalcade entries past the judges in front of the Union. Then at the game Booster members sit on the 50-yard line and try to guess the identity of George and Martha—this year J. P. Donley and Marty Hurd. At May Day the Board presents trophies to the sororities and fraternities that have earned the greatest number of points in various Booster competitions. The Andy Davis Award is presented to the individual who does the most to promote school spirit. Question: Who is it that rises so early the morning after a game to post the news of our victory in front of the Union?

PEP BAND

Inspired by the gift of 27 bright red blazers from the General Alumni Association, we pepped up school spirit at the football and basketball games this year. Our ranks are divided at times, but this is not due to discord. The Dixieland Combo, our subsidiary group of seven, presents monthly concerts in the Student Union and plays for various events in Lisner Auditorium during the Spring. In these activities we are mixing work with pleasure, for we get enjoyment from our own music. And nothing makes us happier than to lead a cheering crowd of Colonials in a chorus or two of "Hail to the Buff."

CHEERLEADERS

Did you recognize us at the Homecoming dance, with our rain-soaked hair and voices hoarse from out-yelling those midshipmen? We are like the trusty mailmen—neither rain nor hail nor sleet nor gloom of night can stay us from cheering our teams on to victory. We particularly enjoy going to away games to encourage our boys when they are met by unfriendly crowds. While other Colonials are vacationing, we begin practicing during the Summer. But our efforts are well rewarded when the Colonial supporters cheer enthusiastically, whether the team is winning or losing. Let's not forget to mention our three wonderful yell leaders—Parke Avery, Roy DuBrow, and Murray Politz.

WOMEN'S ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION

Block that shot!

Our aim is to encourage greater participation in women's sports. At weekly Board meetings, we formulate plans for a well-rounded competitive sports program for the women of GWU. In the Fall, our hockey players take the field for some sizzling competition. On the tennis courts our girls participate in informal matches with other area schools. Also, our Rifle Club sharpshooters begin practice for their year-long schedule of matches which ends with the National Rifle Association finals. With the coming of Winter, our Bowling Club members are found at local lanes in inter-club contests. Birdies are in the air as the Badminton Club gets under way. And we have basketball games. During the warm Spring days, some girls are found on the softball diamond, others start practicing for the all-University swim meet. The W.A.A. also sponsors two Sports Awards Banquets at which trophies and letters are presented and honorary varsities are announced. And to prove that we can create as well as co-ordinate, we were winners of the Mortar Board Scrapbook Award last year.

COLUMBIAN WOMEN

The Columbian Women has the distinction of being both the oldest and the largest organization on the GWU campus. Included in our membership are both current and former women students, women recipients of honorary degrees, and women members of the faculty, Board of Trustees, and administrative staff of the University. Our major purposes are the advancement of women at the University and the promotion of the interests of the University itself. Reflecting our desire for the advancement of women is the awarding of scholarships to women students who display high academic achievement and a need for financial assistance. Our 550 members become acquainted at teas, brunches, and luncheons throughout the year.

EMANON

Emanon spelled backwards is "No Name," but Emanon spelled forward spells cooperation and coordination in the social programs of the sororities and fraternities, from G Street to far above Dupont Circle. We, the social chairmen of these Greek groups, meet once a month at one of the fraternity houses to discuss problems of mutual interest, to formulate plans for inter-Greek get-togethers, and to encourage social sophistication in our fellow Greeks. We publish a booklet of "Info by Emanon" to assist social chairmen in planning events for groups of five to five hundred.

Dick Wills seals the mystic door at the Sigma Nu house, entombing forever the members of Emanon. Pete Wasilewski is a co-conspirator.

KAPPA PSI

SEATED: M. Nevins, F. Geissel, President; E. Earley. STANDING: P. Legg, D. Allen, J. Sanders, P. Bergeron, G. Koustenis, Adviser; J. Miller, J. Eblen, E. Collins.

Female-type pharmacy students often find they get encouraging glances during lab efforts.

The first Wednesday of every month Kappa Psi members hold meetings in the Pharmacy School. Our fraternity has been in existence at GWU since 1951, and has seen a 70% membership increase since 1958. Six of our members received Scholarship Honors Certificates from Kappa Psi National Headquarters for attaining a Quality Point Index of 3.0 or better. Fraternal activities are carried out for the advancement of the pharmaceutical profession educationally, fraternally, and socially. It is our aim to increase interest in pharmacy among the general public.

ALPHA ZETA OMEGA

Three cavalier lads prepare to attack the day's weighty problems.

While we are preparing for careers as corner druggists and vaccine developers, we have joined together in a professional fraternity dedicated to the betterment of pharmacy. To this aim we work with and through the Pharmacy Council. Our activities are designed to increase our knowledge in the field of pharmacy. At our annual dinner, we award a scholarship to a Freshman entering the School of Pharmacy, and we honor others who are prominent in the field. We get together for dances and dinners during the school year. We also sustain the National Culture Fund. We have been encouraged this year by a 100% increase in membership.

SEATED: J. Morton, L. Alpert, President. STANDING: M. Stewart, J. Davis, H. Hurwitz, Dr. Schwartz, Adviser; M. Marks, M. Hyman, R. Cohen, J. Shapiro, M. Press, M. Kousen.

HOME ECONOMICS CLUB

FIRST Row: S. McCandless, J. Campbell, C. Wilson, D. Lokerson, President; B. Hulsman, B. Baylor. SECOND Row: M. English, R. Akey, E. Garfield, P. Brown, T. London, C. Smith.

With our social, educational, and professional activities, we are a busy group on campus. Our many worthy service projects for the Washington area include the collecting of clothing and canned foods for a needy family at Thanksgiving, and the stuffing of Christmas stockings for the WRC Doll House. We put our classroom skills to use preparing refreshments for the faculty tea. In the Spring, our finale for the year was the annual social "get-together" with Home Economics Clubs from other area colleges. Through our activities, we hope to foster lasting friendships among our members and to stimulate an interest in Home Economics.

PHI DELTA GAMMA

FIRST Row: E. McMahon, G. Smith, M. Carson, President; G. Fishel, D. Brewer, M. Fields. SECOND Row: D. Johnson, H. Whittington, A. Hogan, F. Dunn, V. Miller.

Phi Delta Gamma, the national graduate women's fraternity, promotes and encourages professional training for women. To qualify for membership, the individual must possess good character, high scholarship standards, and leadership ability. Our monthly business meetings are often followed by guest speakers, with subject matter varying from culture to public affairs. Tangible evidence of Beta chapter's interest in furthering graduate training is our annual award of the Phi Delta Gamma Scholarship to a woman graduate student at the University. This year we enlarged our scholarship fund by the sale of a cookbook designed and developed by our members.

STUDENT NATIONAL EDUCATION ASSOCIATION

Education majors doing some Group Work. "But what do you do when the monster kicks you?"

We've spent a busy year recruiting new members for SNEA and the teaching profession. In order to foster interest in teaching and provide information on the profession, we invite speakers to discuss both the opportunities and problems confronting teachers. In the Fall we joined with the School of Education in a tea, where we met and chatted informally with our professors. We took a trip to visit the headquarters of our parent organization, the National Education Association. Our program, which supplements our formal education courses, is planned so that we have one business meeting and one social meeting each month. We are preparing now for the challenge ahead—when your children's futures will be in our hands.

FIRST ROW: D. Bedford, H. Qualman, R. Leeds, President L. Fischer, N. Head. SECOND ROW: M. Mitchell, E. Mandes, D. Englebart, K. Koester, G. Zumpf, J. Carroll, W. Blake, M. Yonng, N. Salzberg.

Although we have many differing religious beliefs, we cooperate in furthering religious activities on the GWU campus. Our membership consists of two representatives from each of GWU's ten religious organizations, under the guidance of Dr. Joseph Sizoo. We are devoted to the cause of promoting religious ideals and encouraging the expression of religious faith, as evidenced by our early meetings—8 a.m. Our year-long project is the sponsoring of University Chapel services each Wednesday at noon. We also sponsor the Religion-in-Life Week programs, as well as give a reception during Orientation Week to acquaint new students with the advisers and members of their religious organizations.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE ORGANIZATION

SEATED: D. Guiler, J. Stonham. STANDING: D. Gosnell, H. Ernise, R. Priddy, President.

The Christian Science Organization is small in membership but large in activities. Our primary purpose is to foster an understanding among students that we are all living under the influence of a guiding principle which is capable of overcoming every human difficulty. We try to provide accurate information concerning Christian Science to all who seek it. Each Tuesday we meet for student-conducted services. We held a reception for new students in the Fall and presented a public lecture on Christian Science in the Spring. One of our future goals is to make available to students of all denominations a room on campus for the quiet study of religious writings.

EASTERN ORTHODOX CLUB

Now in the second year on campus, the Eastern Orthodox Club affords an opportunity for students of the Christian Orthodox faith to further their spiritual needs and religious education. Our organization actively participates in the activities of the University through the Religious Council. At our bi-monthly meetings lectures on current religious topics by clergymen and laymen of other religions, as well as those of our own faith, are featured. We encourage fellowship among our members by offering several social functions throughout the year.

FIRST Row: A. Dekonschin, K. Malta, M. Grekoff. SECOND Row: M. Malinchock, E. Mandes, President; E. Malinchock, P. Koines. THIRD Row: E. Gratsias, Professor Perros, Adviser; Rev. J. Tavlarides, N. Kopulos.

LUTHERAN STUDENT ASSOCIATION

The Lutheran Students Association seeks to develop fellowship, education, and worship among all Lutheran students on the GWU campus. At our weekly program meetings, we present many topics of inspirational value. We endeavor to become better acquainted with our fellow groups in this area through exchange meetings and social functions with the University of Maryland and American University Associations. A much-anticipated event each year is our Area Conference held in March at Buckhill Falls, Pennsylvania. Here we learn more about our church and share our beliefs, but still find time for skiing, tobagganing, and chatting by the fireside.

NEWMAN CLUB

The Newman Club's religious, intellectual, and social program keeps Catholic students at GWU stepping, with activities morning, noon, and night. Among our religious activities are monthly communions followed by breakfast, a Day of Recollection at the beginning of Religion-in-Life Week, informal lectures, and "Question Boxes" conducted by Fr. Krastel, club chaplain. To complete our program, we have a series of social events such as club parties on holiday occasions, bowling parties, and the all-University Celebrity Capers Dance, at which we honor ten outstanding seniors. We are kept busy during the football season building floats and celebrating GWU victories.

WESLEY FOUNDATION

FIRST Row: K. O'Berg, K. Peck, N. Davidson, J. Meyer, M. Mitchell, President; O. Wilson, R. Holland, B. Fallan, B. Wells. SECOND Row: B. Bunting, C. Landon, C. Putmane, V. Michael, P. Tucker, H. Slye.

Sunday dinners, outstanding speakers, and an annual trip up the Skyline Drive provide Christian friendship, food, and fun for Wesleyans. We particularly enjoyed the weekend retreats with other college groups of the Methodist student movement. Our rooms on the third floor of the Union Methodist Church were the scene of many programs which emphasized spiritual growth and a deeper understanding of the tenets of Methodism. "Wesley," as we fondly call it, attempts to strengthen the relationship of the students to the church by encouraging church attendance, as well as affiliate membership in the local congregation.

HILLEL FOUNDATION

Hillel officers pose with Rabbi Seidman

FIRST ROW: A. Lowenstein, J. Posner, F. Sussman, C. Salzberg, Rabbi Seidman, S. Price, G. Finkelstein, N. Salzberg, President; E. Platt, R. Lipman. SECOND ROW: E. Wishner, L. Schindler, S. Machlis, J. Snear, M. Kogon, M. Bertman, M. Stearman, B. Mills, R. Ackerman.

Hillel makes an important contribution to the life of the Jewish student and the University. We strive to create a greater student comprehension of the ideals motivating B'nai B'rith Hillel. Our varied and active program concentrates on a series of lectures, such as "Courtship and Marriage," which is combined with our regular Friday worship services. The overall program includes the holiday celebrations, the model Seder, social welfare projects, and the awards banquet. We sent several students to Camp B'nai B'rith last summer for training and inspiration, and we have contributed several subscriptions for Jewish periodicals to the University library. In the literary field, we publish our own newspaper, The Hillel Commentary, and sponsor an all-University writing contest. Our Ball o' Fire, with the crowning of "Mr. Apollo," is the highlight of the Spring social season. Hillel is busy on the GWU campus and is also well established in the community.

GLEE CLUB AND TRAVELING TROUBADORS

The Hallelujah Chorus, concluding the Lisner production of the Messiah.

Music lovers and aspiring young singers at GWU combine their talents in the University Glee Club. Along with the U.S. Air Force Symphony Orchestra and "Singing Sergeants," we performed Handel's traditional "Messiah" at Lisner Auditorium as part of the Holiday Season program. Under the direction of "Doc" Harmon, we rehearsed three times a week in preparation for a month-long appearance at Radio City Music Hall this summer. Troubadours, George Washington's wandering minstrels, covered a lot of ground again this year. A select group of singers chosen from the Glee Club, we sang for the Red Cross, the U.S.O., and Jack Morton Enterprises, and entertained on shows with such top talent as Marguerite Piazza, John Raitt, and Herb Shriner. This summer we're traveling to Greenland and may get to stop off at Iceland, the Azores, or Bermuda.

DANCE PRODUCTION

There's something for everyone at this Great Institution of Learning. Just to prove the point, consider Dance Production. This fine little group is renowned throughout Foggy Bottom for its graceful hopping about before enraptured audiences at Lisner. Under the careful guidance of Miss Burtner and Miss Cheney, students thoughtfully compose and execute remarkable dance numbers. Colonials can always look forward to performances each year at Summer Carnival and May Day. When the dancers leave the stage, all one can do is give a big sigh.

DRAMA PRODUCTION

"You've gotta have Heart."

Come now, Lola, it can't be that bad

THE THINKER
Director Julian Barry

"A Man Doesn't Know What He Has."

"Chin up, old boy!"

Twice each year, Lisner Auditorium is sold out for the performances of GWU's prima donna actresses and Method-type actors. In the Fall, they drew "raves" from the critics for their rendition of the musical "Damn Yankees," which starred Chuck Johnson and Sally Herrington. The show, with its large cast, provided many GWU thespians an opportunity to gain stage experience. In addition, other students did the backstage work, gaining experience in lighting, scenery, decoration, prop management, costuming and make-up. This spring the group staged Arthur Miller's award-winning drama "The Crucible." The choice of plays to be presented is made by the Drama Board, which is composed of faculty and student members under the leadership of Ed Ferero, Director of Dramatic Activities at the University.

ENGINEER'S COUNCIL

As the governing student body of the School of Engineering, we act as a liaison unit between the students and the faculty. We make recommendations to the school administrators on matters affecting the general welfare of the engineering student body. We also serve as the Board of Publishers for the School of Engineering magazine, Mecheleciv. Our membership consists of a faculty adviser and 18 student members who represent the various classes and every major student activity in the School of Engineering. Council elections are held in April of each year, the representatives taking office in May for a term of one year. We sponsor the annual Engineers' Mixer in the Fall and the Engineer's Banquet and Ball each Spring. We publish the Engineer's Guide, a special handbook for new students in the School of Engineering. As a part of the Holiday Season program, we make the arrangements for the annual Christmas Tree Lighting Ceremony. Throughout the year, our teams participate in the intramural program. We sponsor the engineer's hangout, the Davis-Hodgkins House.

The American Society of Civil Engineers was founded in 1852, and our GWU chapter began in 1935. It is our purpose to supplement theoretical knowledge in the field of civil engineering with practical knowledge. To accomplish this end, we hold regular monthly meetings plus visits to civil engineering points of interest. Taking time out from studies and professional activities, we have been known to conduct stag beer parties several times during the year. Currently we are trying to increase our membership by planning appealing and interesting programs to be presented at our regular and special meetings.

It is our aim to promote a professional attitude among the mechanical engineering students at GWU, and to make the student aware of possibilities in life as an engineer. At our monthly meetings we present topics of interest to the prospective mechanical engineer through movies and speakers from our vocational field. Highlighting our activities is the annual A.S.M.E. Prize Paper Contest, held for the purpose of encouraging original research and study by undergraduate engineers. A growing interest in mechanical engineering is evidenced by our 80% increase in membership during the past year.

Despite the profusion of initials, we are not another government alphabet agency. Instead, our abbreviated name stands for the joint student branch of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers and the Institute of Radio Engineers. We have joined together to provide professional activities for students of electrical engineering. Although these societies operate as a joint branch at the University they are sponsored by separate national societies. AIEE is devoted to the advancement of theory and practice in electrical engineering. IRE promotes the advancement of theory and practice in communications, electronics, and related fields. We hold monthly technical meetings featuring films, lectures, and field trips to engineering companies. As an inducement for all University students to join, we serve refreshments following every meeting. We request that hungry American Lit majors in attendance do not eat too much.

Waiting for the shrimp boats to come in

Engineers in all fields—civil, electrical, and mechanical—get together in this professional fraternity. Our members are selected from students in the School of Engineering, our membership is not in competition with social fraternities, engineering societies, and honoraries. The Theta Tau program is geared to promote the high ideals of fraternal brotherhood and to stimulate professional activity and social compatibility. We compete in intramural sports and participate in the various activities of the School of Engineering. We hold an Initiation Banquet and Ball in both the Fall and Spring, and a family picnic in the Summer. At the end of the year, the chapter awards a plaque to the student selected by faculty members as the outstanding Senior engineer.

THE POTOMAC

GWU students find an outlet for creativity and self-expression in art, poetry, and prose in The Potomac. The welcome mat is always out for students to submit essays, short stories, poems, and sketches, for we are endeavoring to make each issue of our literary magazine bigger and better. Although just two years old, The Potomac seems to be firmly entrenched in the minds of students. It was amazing to us to see how quickly each of our two issues sold out.

STUDENT HANDBOOK

To find out who's who and what's what at GWU, just take a look at the Student Handbook. Our book is primarily directed at the incoming Freshmen and transfer students, although many GWU old-timers find it very interesting and helpful. It is available free of charge to all students. We attempt to acquaint the student with GWU's many activities and the ways of participating in them. The book also includes helpful hints on where to go and what to do, and even what to say. We spent the hot Summer months compiling this information so that the Handbook truly came hot off the press in September in time for the Orientation Assembly.

Ours was a hard-working staff, as shown by the finished product, The University Hatchet. A few cracks of the whip by Roger, Nancy, and Aaron brought amazing results—a lively and professional newspaper which was awaited eagerly each week. Come Wednesday and not a single Hatchet could be found. Deadlines! Deadlines! Many a Friday afternoon found the would-be Winchells, Pearsons, and Anne Landers of GWU behind the black door, hastily typing stories. Each story had to be typed and retyped, only to be edited and typed again—via “hunt and peck.” The Hatcheteers cut some pretty fancy capers at times, but there was a serious, more academic side—the side which produced intelligent editorials and stimulating, well-written stories. Reporters were inspired by the beautiful art work on the office wall, to say nothing of the stunning view of Student Union Alley. By the way, who does write “Foggy Bottom?” Fess up, Hester.

Sponsored by the Law School, the student editors are chosen on the basis of scholarship. The highest-ranking Senior is selected Editor-in-Chief. Each issue contains articles concerning federal and state public law and current legal problems, as well as commentaries by students on recent decisions in federal and state courts. The Law Review serves as a training ground for future lawyers in legal writing and research. It also provides members of the bar and students of public law with information on recent developments in the field.

Putting together a yearbook is something like building a house—little by little, piece by piece, a yearbook takes shape. But a house builder is not surprised at what his finished house looks like. The yearbook editor is probably as surprised as anyone when the job is done and the finished book rolls in from the printer.

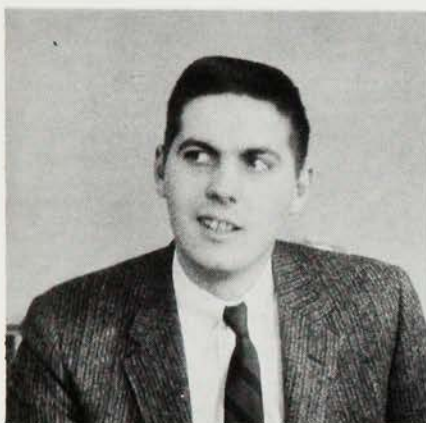

The yearbook staff has toiled for the balance of the school year to put this 1960 CHERRY TREE in your hands. The book is the product of many different ideas and preferences, all mixed together. Whatever planning we used was directed at one goal: Produce a book that tells as much of the G.W. story as you can put between two covers. That's a big job, because our University is a kaleidoscope of activities, events, and people.

The year has been anything but dull, as any CHERRY TREE staffer will tell you. During countless meetings and activities on campus, photographer Jim Black plunged ever onward, capturing on film for our pages the people and events that make up this school.

Well, this is it, THE CHERRY TREE for 1960. We hope you like it.

the Leadership Laboratory drill field. The AFROTC student gains a broad knowledge of Air Force operations in his four years of classroom work. On the Leadership Laboratory field, the student first learns the fundamentals of drill, and then advances to the responsibilities of a command position.

But classroom and drill are only a part of the activities in AFROTC. The Cadet Corps participates in local parades and drill competition. Cadets may enjoy social events as well, including the annual Military Ball. Throughout the school year, cadets may take flight orientation trips in the Washington area or go on flights to distant Air Force bases.

There are two national honorary organizations in the Cadet Corps. The Carl Spaatz Squadron of the Arnold Air Society was established in 1952 to recognize those cadets who demonstrate outstanding leadership potential. Membership in the Pershing Rifles is open to Basic Course cadets. The PR's develop a drill team good enough to capture more than its share of honors each year.

FOOTBALL

Bill Elias Takes the Reins

With the close of the 1959 football season, Colonials were surprised by long-time coach Bo Sherman's sudden resignation. Wheels began to turn in the search for a new man. In late December, President Colclough interviewed Purdue's head backfield coach, and two weeks later an announcement by Athletic Director Bob Faris made it official. Bill Elias was the choice.

Elias had been on the Purdue staff for six years when the call from George Washington came. Before that, he had spent five very successful years coaching at the Richmond, Indiana, High School.

The new coach describes himself as a "driver," and calls George Washington "A place where I can do a job." He advocates a flashy offense, based on a new spread version of the standard T-formation. Mixed in with this formula will be the coaching techniques learned under University of Maryland coaches Paul "Bear" Bryant and Jim Tatum and Jack Mollenkopf of Purdue.

Bowing out, Coach Eugene "Bo" Sherman

A drive into Navy territory

A Few Bright Spots

Too bad it couldn't have been "eight and one" instead of "one and eight." The squad was able to "rise to the occasion" several times, but it just lacked the power for sixty-minute excellence.

The season did have its bright spots. After a discouraging opening-day loss to Detroit, 38-6, the Colonials defeated a favored Boston University team. A thrilling last-minute touchdown drive of sixty yards made the difference. The next week, however, a last-minute upset failed to materialize as the final drive ended short of the goal with the score reading West Virginia 10, George Washington 8.

After the pleasant shower came the drouth; the Colonials failed to score in their next ten quarters of play. They were shut-out by both Wichita and Furman before getting a touchdown against William and Mary. And the slump continued; two more games and two more losses—VMI 28-George Washington 6 and Richmond 26-George Washington 0.

The team seemed bent on redeeming itself when it met the Navy Midshipmen. The final score showed the determination of the Colonials. The defense that had crumbled before Furman held before Navy; the supreme effort lasted long enough to make the final score embarrassing to the highly-touted Middies. Navy 16-George Washington 8, and a spirited close to an unfortunate season.

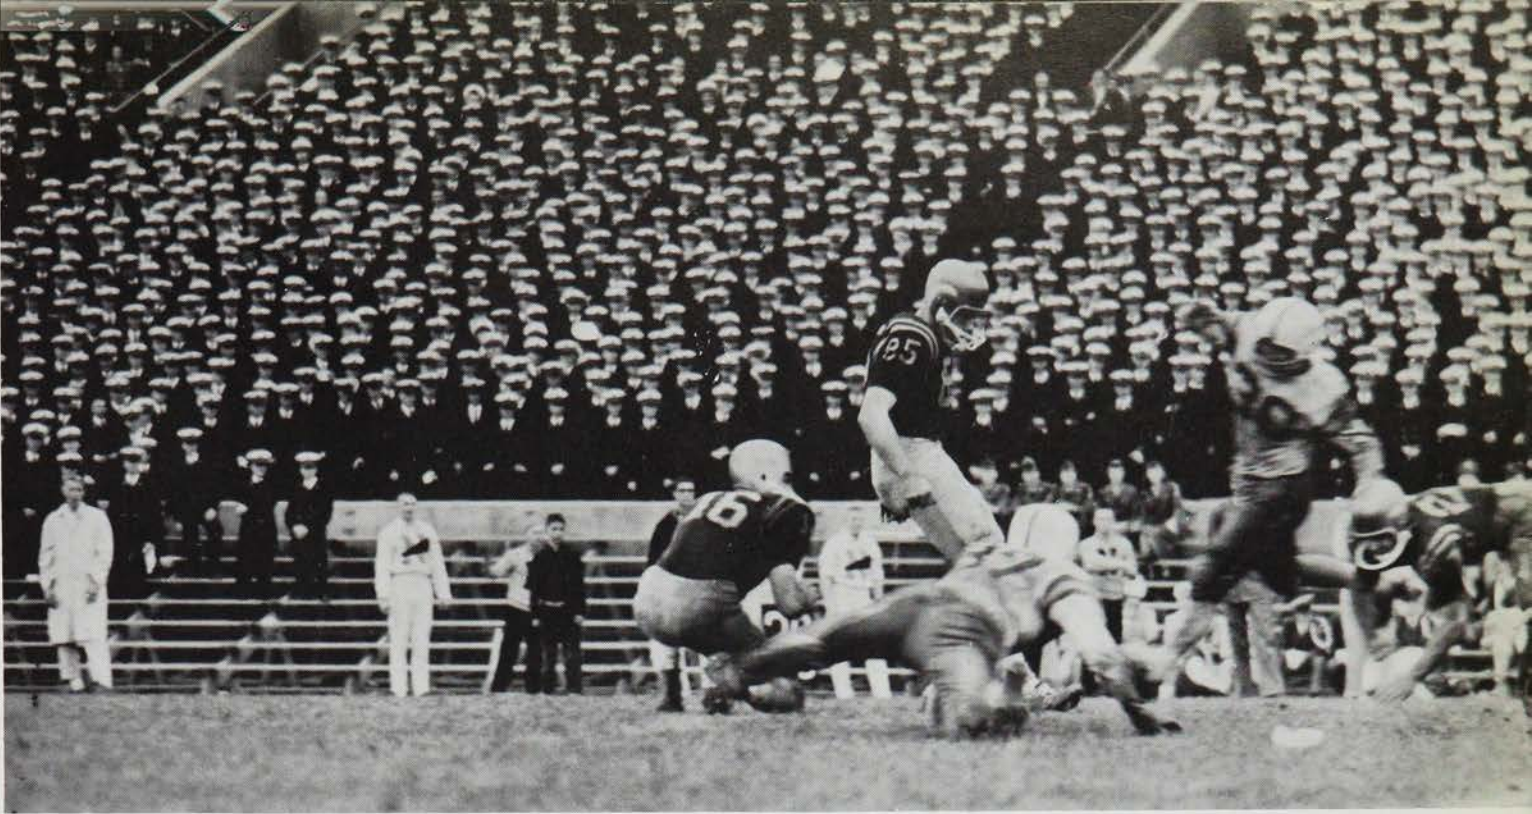

The end of the line

Mighty Middies are Surprised

The homecoming game against Navy provided one of the few good moments of the season. The Colonials, in spite of their Homecoming fervor, were 20, 30, even 40-point underdogs before their meeting with the powerful Navy team. But, as usual when the Colonials meet the Midshipmen, the book-makers had a surprise coming.

The first half started briskly with a Navy threat that reached the end-zone, but was then called back on a forward-lateral penalty. George Washington took over on an end-zone interception by Henry Busky. It was such a defensive play that set the style for the rest of the half.

Half-time score: 0-0. The George Washington rooters began to quit worrying about the predicted overwhelming defeat. But the Colonial team was getting tired. They had played "at their peak" for a full half, and the strain was beginning to tell.

Almost as soon as the teams returned to the field, Navy got tough. A series of completed passes gave the Midshipmen their first touchdown. As if this were not enough, the next Navy drive, also sustained by passes, led to another score. The Buff stalled the next offensive, but not in time to prevent a field goal that made it 16-0 at the end of the third quarter.

Things looked dark, but Buff quarterback Ed Hino still had one threat left. He threw, completed, and threw again until a Colonial touchdown and running conversion brought the score to 16-8. And so it remained until the final gun. It was a fair showing for a team that was scheduled to give Navy a "rest" before the annual classic with Army.

BASKETBALL

Eighteenth Season for G. W. Coach

This year saw the completion of basketball coach Bill Reinhart's 18th season at George Washington. During this time his teams have consistently done him credit, the 1959-60 squad being no exception.

For 12 years prior to his arrival at G.W. in 1935, Reinhart was a member of the coaching staff at his alma mater, Oregon. Then, "for the duration," he left Oregon to coach the championship Navy Fleet City football team. After the war he continued in this nautical bent, accepting a post as Director of Athletics at the U.S. Maritime Academy. He came to G.W. in 1948.

Among the pupils that Reinhart has sent on to success in the game are Red Auerbach, coach of the world champion Boston Celtics; Matt Zunic, former coach at Boston University; Bob Faris, George Washington's Athletic Director; Joey Gallagher, coach of the successful St. Johns high school team; and Corky Devlin and Joe Holup, veterans in professional basketball.

The Colonials' big man, Bill Ingram

Those Graduation Blues

This year was one of building for the Colonials. Graduation, 1959, cost the Buff four of its starting five. Only Howie Bash was left from "the best starting five in the country."

Into the vacuum stepped Jon Feldman, Dick Markowitz, a Junior transfer student, and Bill Kunze and Howie Bash, the "old pros" of the line-up. These four, along with several others, made the team that gave Colonial rooters a season of surprises.

In fact, the first game was an upset—George Washington handily defeated Richmond, 89-83. The next two games were disappointing, however, with losses to Maryland and VPI. The Colonials came back to defeat VMI, but then slumped again, losing to both the Citadel and Furman in a single weekend.

During the Christmas recess the team rallied with upset victories over Wake Forest, William and Mary, and Temple and an impressive showing in the Gulf South Classic. But when school re-opened, George Washington lost out to Georgetown.

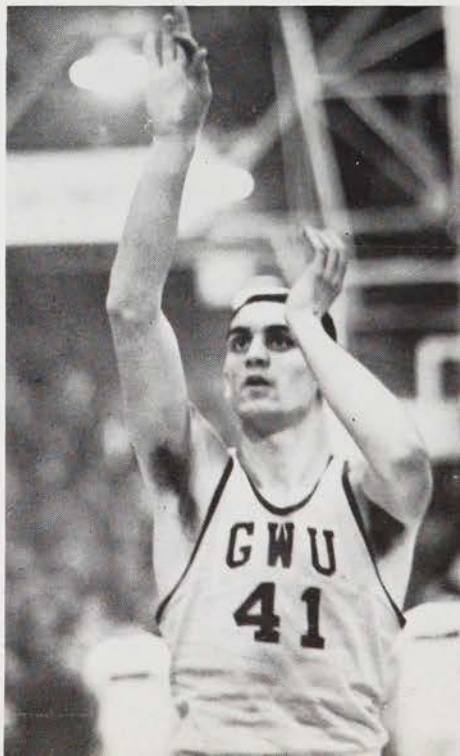

During the midsemester break, the Buff came on strong to post victories over Richmond, Boston University, and Bucknell and lost only to a strong St. Johns team. The record was beginning to look good. It looked even better with an upset over VPI, 105-90, but in the same week we lost to West Virginia, 101-79, to even the books.

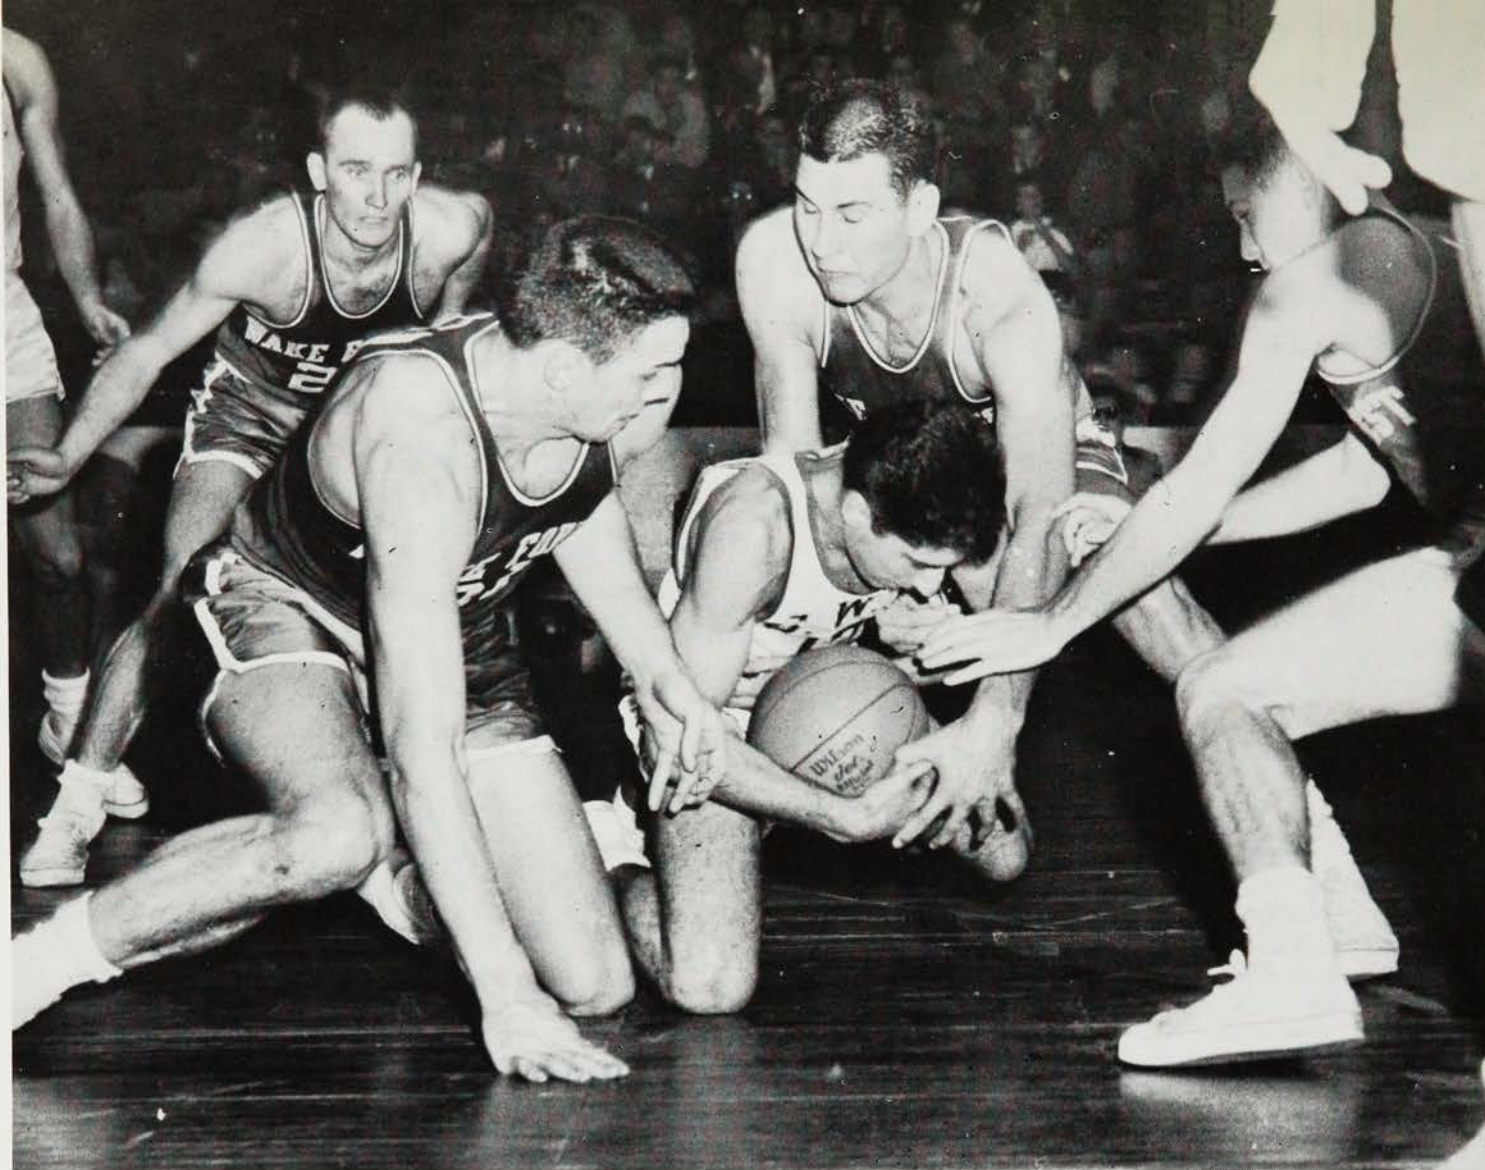

William and Mary ran over us before we were able to defeat Georgetown in a thrilling overtime game. Then came the climax, the first Colonial victory over West Virginia since 1956.

One more heading in for Markowitz and G.W.

BASEBALL

Colonials Take Conference Crown Fourth Straight Time

Coach Bill Reinhart's Colonial nine came on strong last year, winning 14 out of 17 and taking the Southern Conference title for the fourth consecutive time.

It was a young team and a powerful one—the Sophomore and Junior squad posted a .317 team batting average and scored more than twice as much as its opponents. Pitching was also outstanding, with Sophomores Dennis Hill (8-0) and Frank Campana (3-2) carrying most of the load.

The Colonials started their season with a win over Vermont, but then lost to Colby College. Then they swept a double-header from Trinity and topped Washington and Lee before the next loss, Richmond. A non-conference win over Georgetown made spirits so high that the split double-header with West Virginia didn't seem to matter.

It was the last loss of the season. Victories over Richmond, VMI (twice), VPI (twice), Georgetown, William and Mary, and Washington and Lee followed in rapid succession and led the Buff to an undisputed conference championship.

Top man in two sports, Bill Reinhart

Powerhouse of the Southern Conference. They added number four to the list.

You Can't Pick the Best One

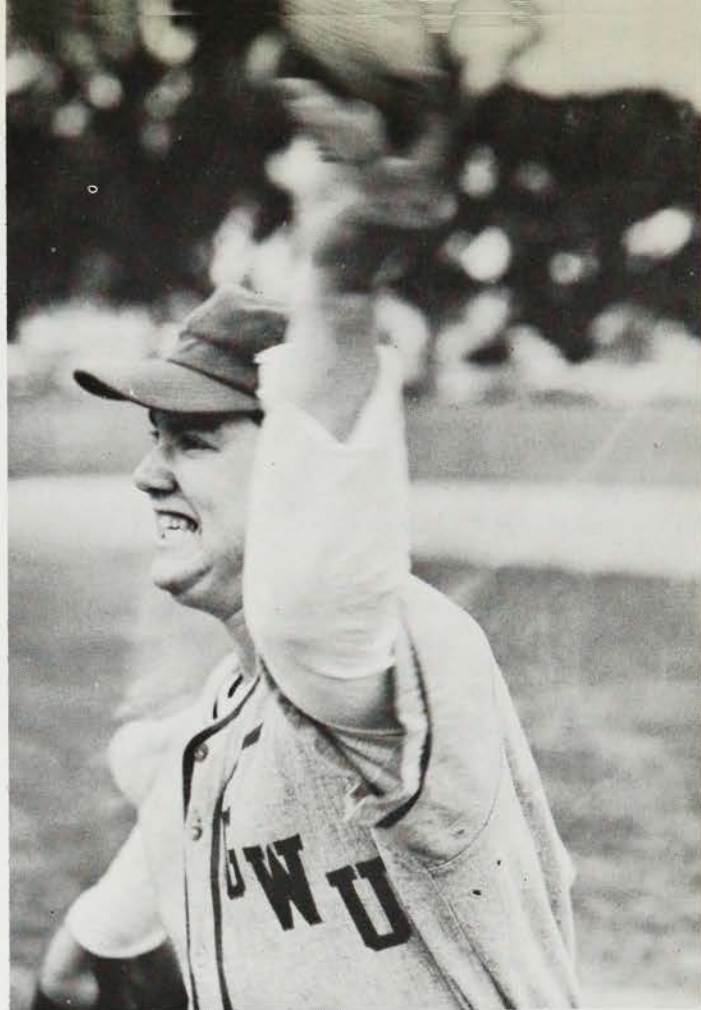

It's hard to pick out a key game for the season.

The season opener is always important, and George Washington won it, 7-1, over Vermont with the two-hit pitching of George Bickerton. It was a fine start—a good omen.

Then there was the second Georgetown game, when the Colonials barely managed to tie it up in the ninth and then went on to score six runs in the tenth to romp. The tying run was scored after Frank Campana had pitched almost eight innings of near-perfect ball for the Buff.

West Virginia games are always important. In mid-season the Colonials split a double-header with the Mountaineers, winning the first game 4-3 and losing the second 9-3. The first game was a pitchers' battle, and so was the second until the West Virginians broke loose for four runs in the sixth inning.

Dennis Hill won eight and lost none; Ron DeMelfi, Don Herman, and Sam Knisley hit the ball well and often; and the Colonials won the big ones. It was a fine season.

Another Year. Another Trophy

For the tennis team last year was a year like all years—good. For the fourth consecutive year the Colonial netmen added a "First Place, Southern Conference" plaque to the display in the athletic office. Most all of Coach Bill Shreve's top men graduated last Spring, however, and the team has been left with big shoes to fill.

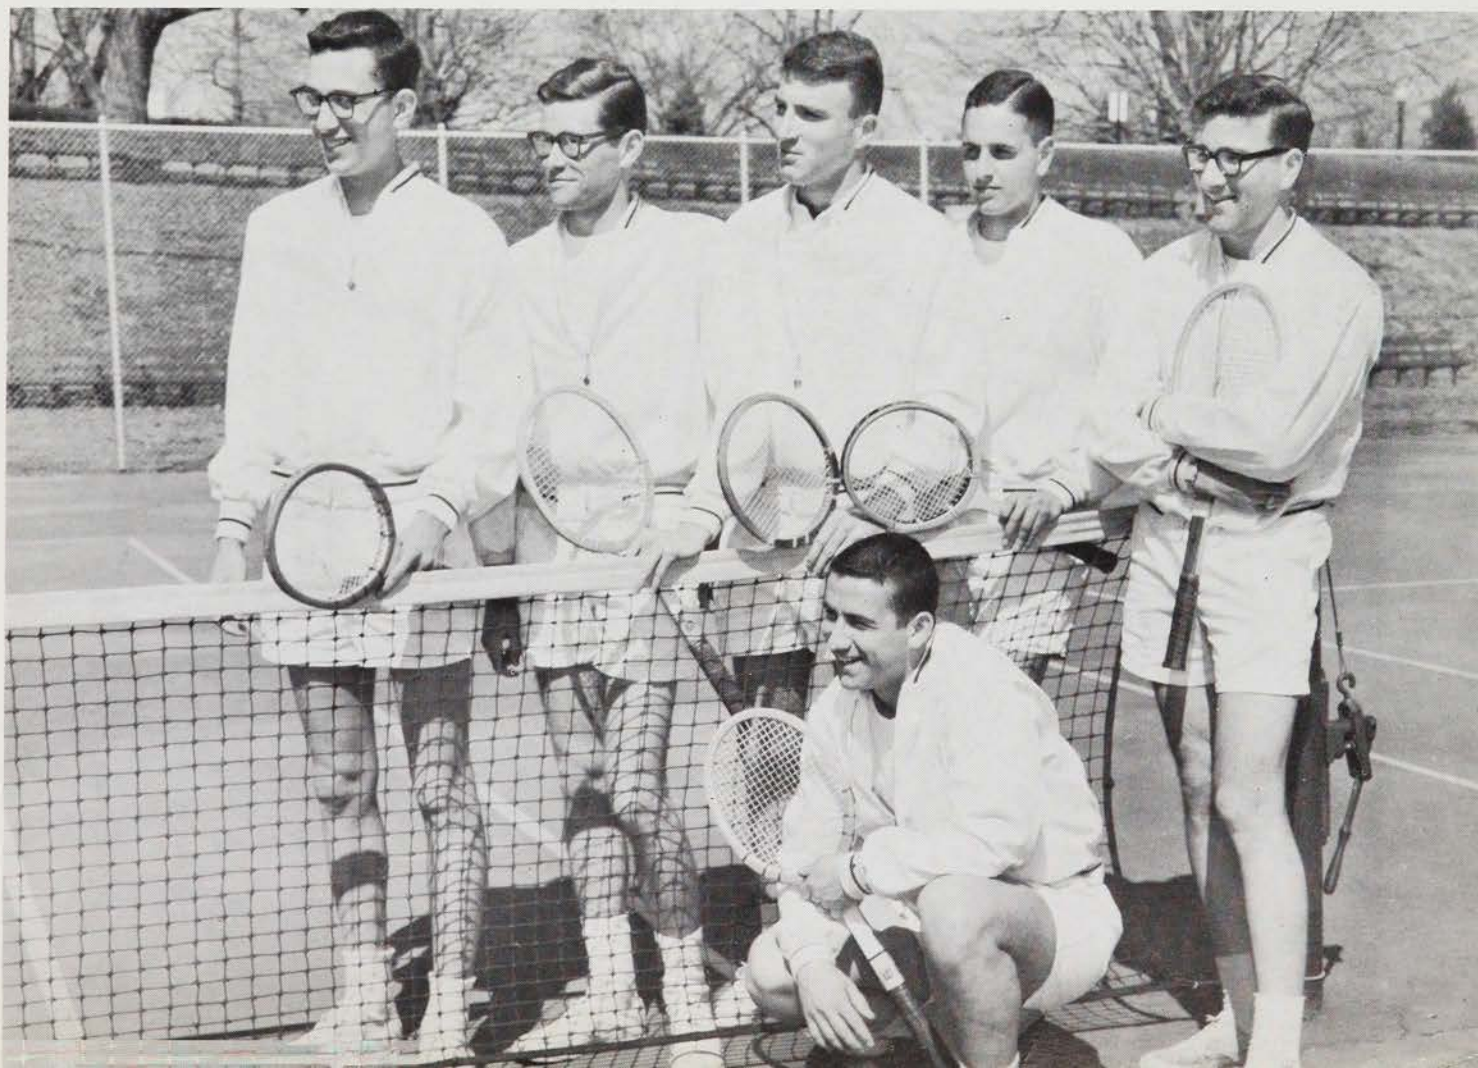

In the regular season last year the tennis team registered victories over Davidson, VMI, VPI, William and Mary, Brown, West Virginia, Richmond, and the Citadel, and losses to North Carolina, Georgetown, Duke, and Dartmouth. During the season the Buff continued undefeated in the Southern Conference.

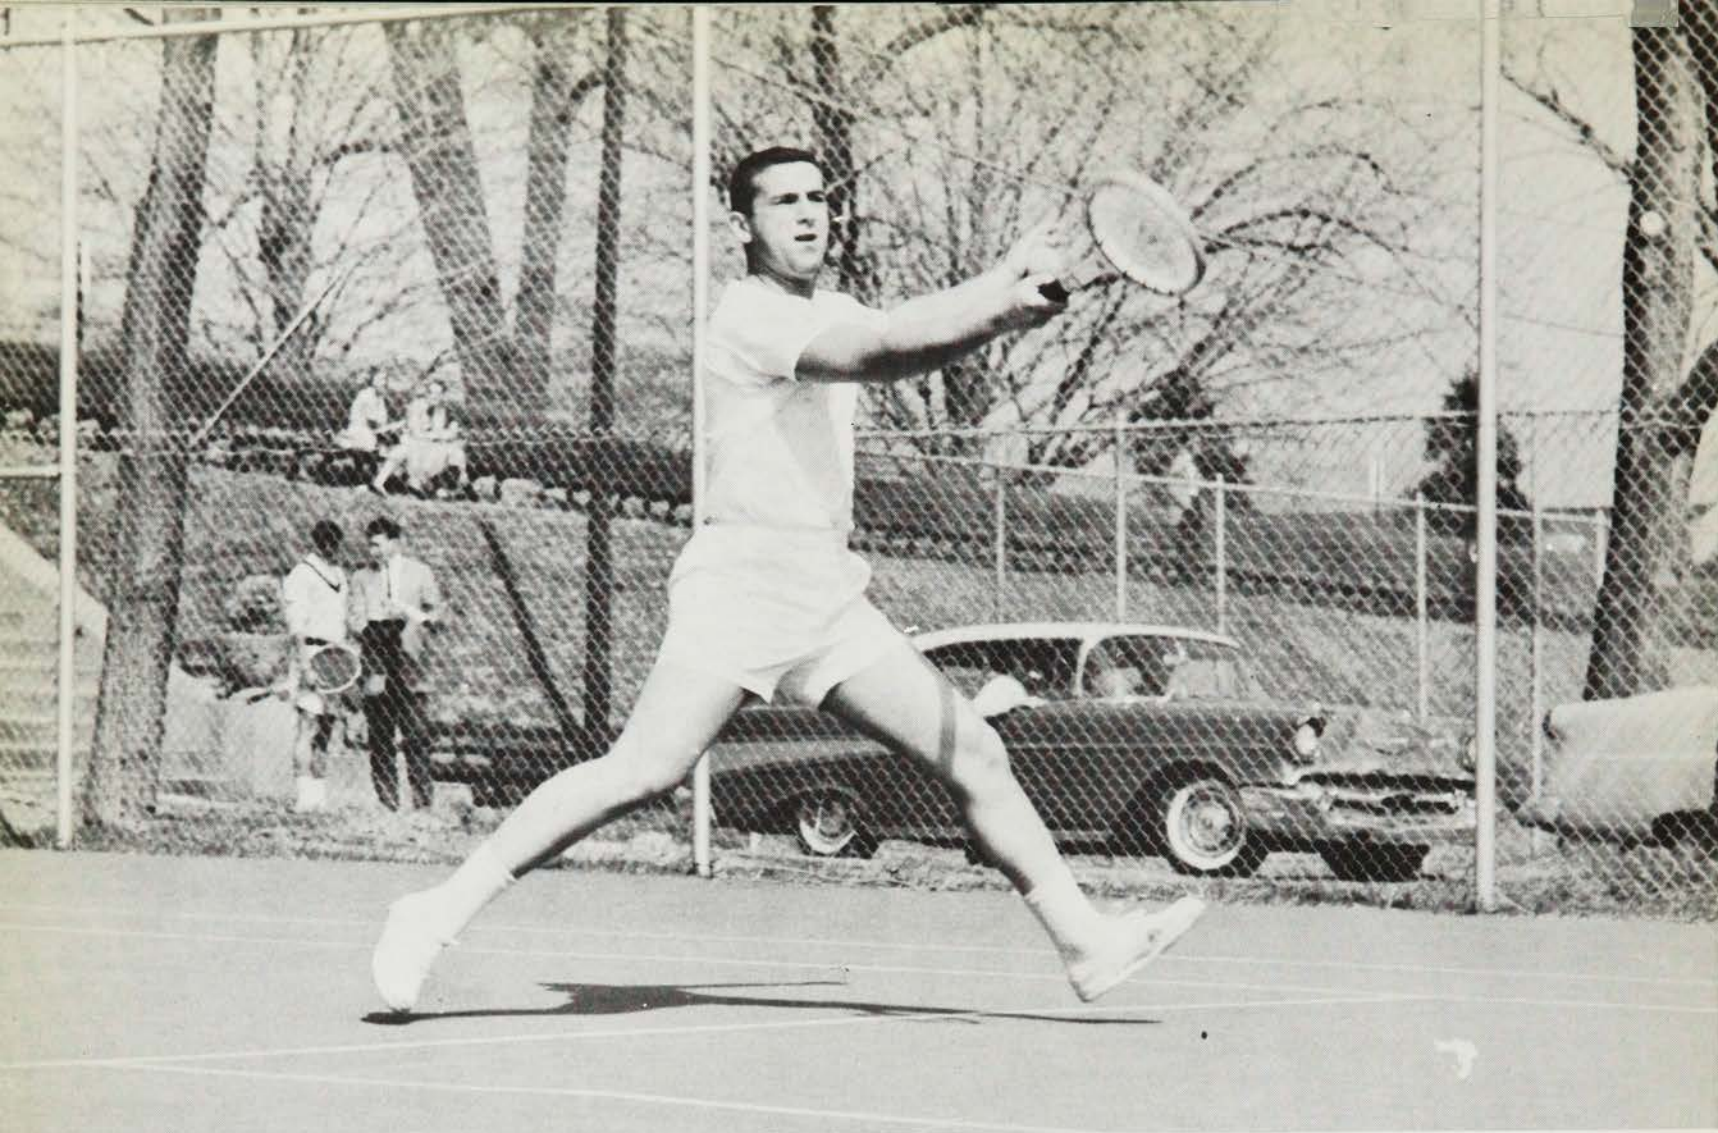

Jack Tarr, championship doubles and singles man, Saul Leibowitz, undefeated in singles in 1959, and Ken Garrison, number six singles winner in 1959, will be lost to the 1960 squad; and Elliott Swift, Larry Church, and Walt Gerfield will be expected to take up the slack.

"Minor Sports" Vie for Major Place at G. W.

G-Street sharpshooters. Watch out for that gal in the middle.

RIFLE

With Coach Henry Feulla showing them how, and with several excellent sharpshooters showing them the way, George Washington's riflemen again fired their way to a good showing in the Southern Conference.

Although the squad lost several of its top marksmen from last year through graduation, a new group of younger shooters has taken up the slack through the season.

Among the leading lights of last year's rifle squad was Miss Helen Skopic, a woman who has excelled in a field which most people automatically limit to male participation. Also consistently shooting well for the Colonials were Julian Seidel, Vick Tobias, and Don Havens.

SAILING

Sailing is a sport that has not one, but two seasons each year. From the opening of school to the annual Frostbite Regatta in December, and again from March through May, the Colonial sailors are in competition with such schools as Navy, Princeton, Georgetown, University of Pennsylvania, Drexel, and Haverford.

Last year the sailing team failed to post an impressive record, but it was one of the Middle Atlantic Intercollegiate Sailing Association's representatives in the national championship regatta at the Merchant Marine Academy.

This year has been one of building for the Colonial "wetbacks." Under the leadership of Bob Faris, Dave Bernheisel, and Gail Rogers the organization and function of the team has been changed and several new sailors introduced to the sport. The results so far have been excellent.

GOLF

In spite of an early season slump, last year's Colonial golfers again came out on top in the Southern Conference. Coach Bob Faris' linksmen won their opening match against Columbia, but then proceeded to lose two straight to Colgate and Georgetown. In spite of a top round by Eddie Bower, they also finished last in the Greenbriar Tournament at White Sulphur Springs.

In their first Southern Conference competition, however, the Buff golfers began to show what was to come, defeating VMI and then Richmond to put their record back into the black. But again they stepped out of the conference into losses, this time to Princeton and Washington and Lee.

Then, on the eve of the conference tournament, the Colonials defeated West Virginia and William and Mary to make the final record 5-4. After a slow start in the tourney, the Colonials managed to come from behind on the last day to edge out Davidson for the title.

CREW

The crew works up pre-season steam. No rest for the weary.

Fighting the Membership Battle

Although we often refer to a "sophomore team," it's seldom we run into one that really fits the bill. The George Washington crew completed its second year of intercollegiate competition this Spring to earn the title. The team is still building, but, despite inexperience, it has made a good showing everytime.

The new crew coach is Chip Fawcett, a veteran of much rowing in the championship Princeton shells of a few years ago. Under Coach Fawcett's leadership, the nucleus of veterans has conducted a vigorous recruiting program throughout the University.

Last year the Colonial Crew lost a close race to Fordham University in New York by one and three-quarters lengths, and then finished third in a triangular regatta behind St. Joseph's of Philadelphia and Georgetown. In this meet the Georgetown crew edged out the Colonials by just a single length.

After these events, the crew competed against Navy, and then went on to give a good account of itself in the annual Dad Vail Regatta in Philadelphia. The "Dad Vail" is designed for those schools which consider rowing a "minor sport."

In his recruiting program, Coach Fawcett has stressed the need for able oarsmen who are willing to learn. Because of the lack of material, last year's team had an average weight that was about twenty pounds less than that of most crews.

"Today is the perfect day to come out for a new, challenging sport," said Coach Fawcett in relation to his program.

INTRAMURALS

The start of the intramural season was marred by postponements, rain, and a rash of forfeits, but the football program finally got under way. Sigma Chi took A1 League honors, Alpha Epsilon Pi and the Moonlighters split the A2 title, and the Med School Freshmen and Sophomores won in the B league.

Alpha Epsilon Pi again won in the ping-pong competition, this year piling up nearly four hundred points, over twice the total of the second place Delta Theta Phi team.

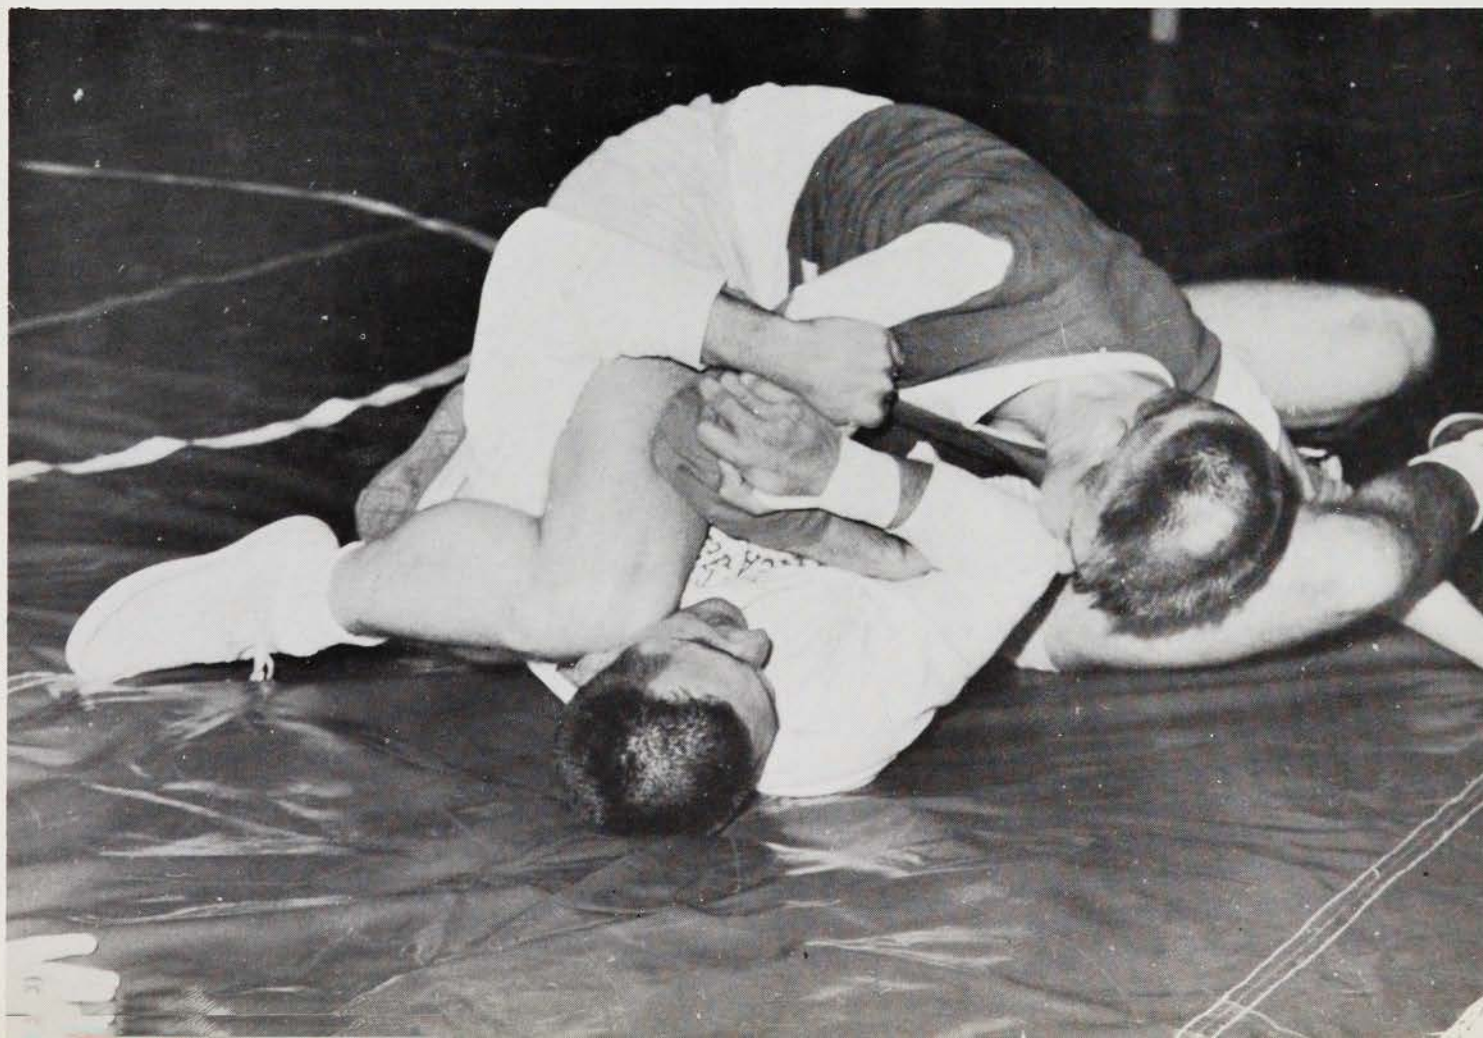

In basketball last Spring Delta Theta Phi edged past a strong Sigma Alpha Epsilon team in the finals to take the championship. There had originally been a tie in one league, but DTP defeated Pi Kappa Alpha, the third place team, for its place in the finals.

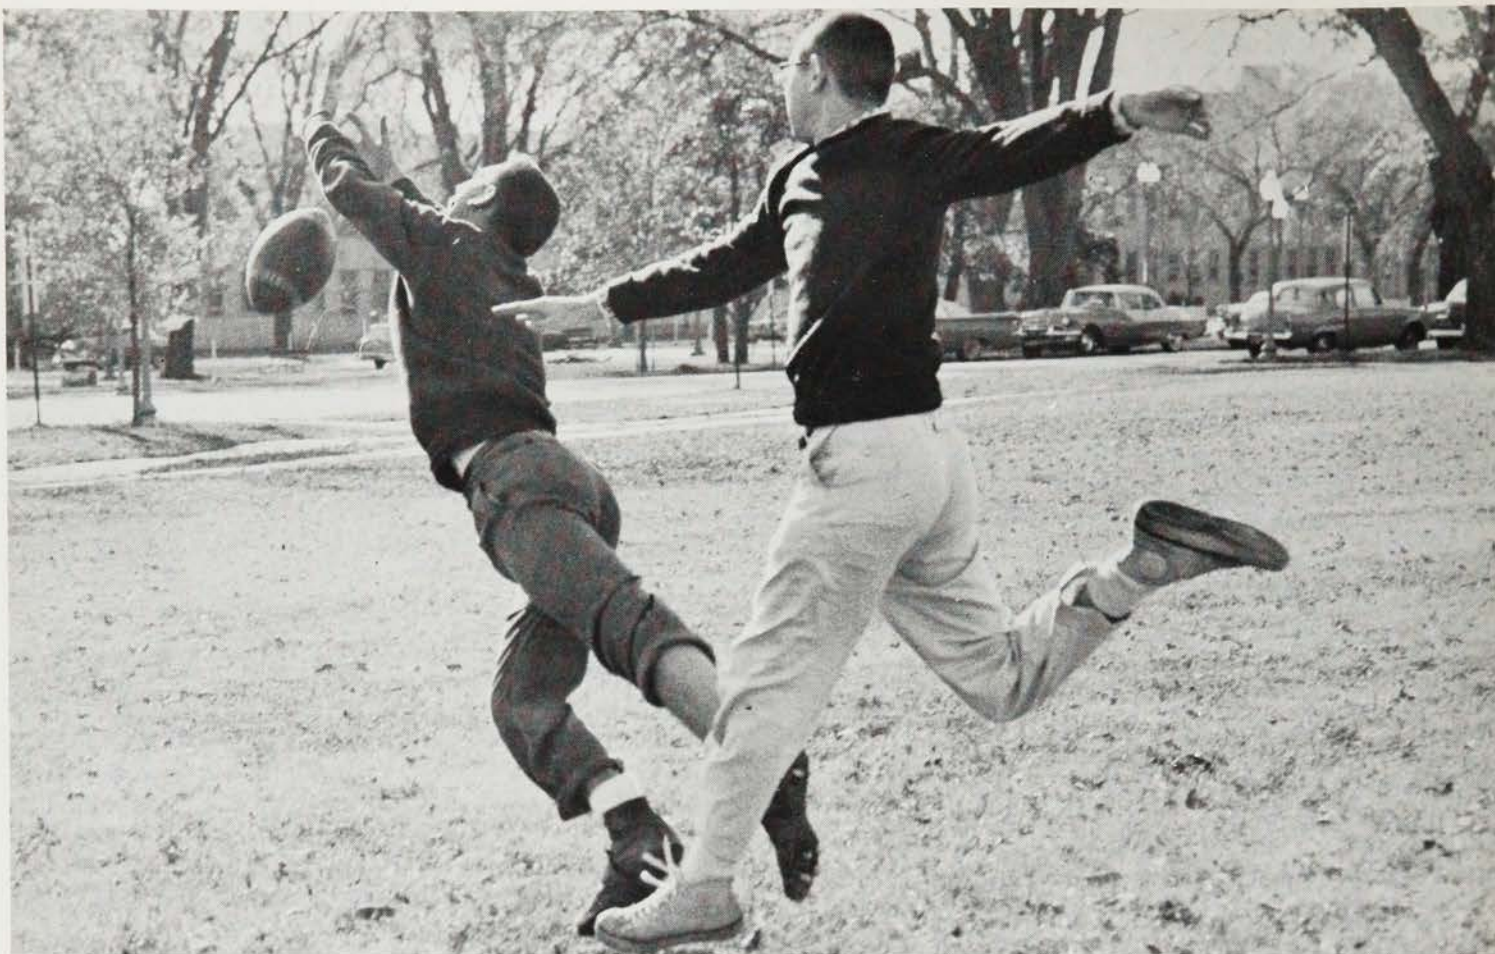

In the track meet Sigma Alpha Epsilon turned back all opposition to roll up the highest total score in the history of the event, 101 points. Stethotolis of Delta Theta Phi and Mike Sommer of SAE were high point men with 28 and 23 points, respectively.

The Hawkers took the softball crown last Spring by defeating the Med School and Delta Theta Phi in the play-off series. The Doctors took second, DTP third.

It was all over but the shouting when the intramural golf tournament began; in spite of a victory by Alpha Epsilon Pi, the second-place team, the Med School took the title easily. The Interfraternity Council trophy for the top fraternity went to AEP, while Al Galiani won the individual trophy.

CHARLIE WEAVER SELECTS . . .

The Cherry Tree Queen

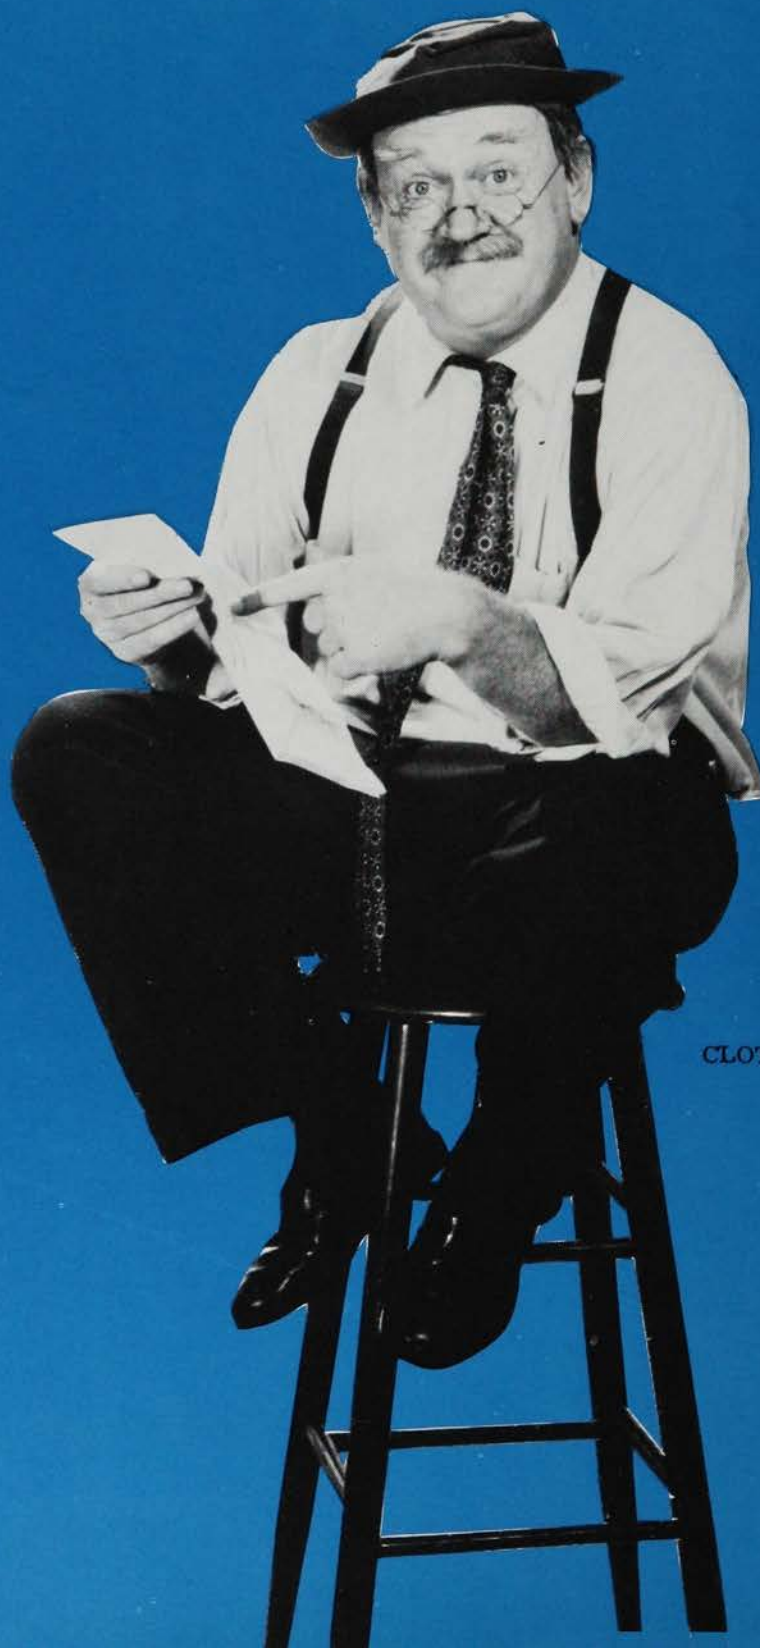

That's not a "Letter from Mama" Charlie Weaver is looking over—not unless Mama is offering advice from back in Mount Ida on the selection of the 1960 CHERRY TREE Queen and the two Princesses of her Court.

Since the days of six-inch TV screens, Charlie has been a favorite of millions. He is now the star of his own show on ABC television. We are delighted to have such a renowned expert on Wine, Women, and the Finer Things come to our aid in making this selection.

"I am happy to chose the CHERRY TREE Court," Charlie writes, "for your upright, downright, forthright, and estimable publication. But before I do, here is an enlightening Major Extended Remark:

In this life you've got to believe in yourself. You've got to have the courage to speak out if you want to get ahead. For example, consider the case of Jim Warren who had the courage to Speak Up and become a Great Success. When Jim got out of college, he went to work in a large office in New York. He was just a clerk to start, but within six months, Jim Warren was made Vice-President of that huge corporation. And all because he wasn't too timid or embarrassed to speak his mind. Think of it: from clerk to Vice-President within six months. And here's how it happened. One day, Jim noticed something going wrong in the accounting department. Then and there he decided to go in and see the company President to speak up about it. He walked in and stood face to face with the President. Was Jim Warren scared to speak up? Not a bit. He looked that President of the corporation straight in the eye and said, "There's something wrong in the accounting department, Dad."

Now, on with the selections.

SORORITIES

"Is you dere, honey?"

In the sanctuary of their rooms, sorority sisters while away the hours.

"Who ever thought up Panhel Sing, anyway?"

It's all in the game

Honors, activity, scholarship — that about sums up the guiding lights of sorority life. Says one G.W. chapter, "our purpose is to intensify friendship, to promote happiness among our members, and in every way to create such sentiments, to perform such deeds and to mold such opinions as will conduce to building a nobler and purer womanhood in the world." That's quite a mouthful, but it is typical of the high ideals of our G.W. sororities.

"Toil, oh ye lowly pledges."

There's nothing like winning

Raggedy Ann's—Derby Day Champs

Alpha Delta Pi got off to a rousing start in the new year. By capturing first place in the Sigma Chi Derby Day, the sorority walked off with a magnificent trophy. Another shiny cup was earned in the Boosters competition. "Get Cook In" was the slogan, iridescent pink the color, as the entire chapter joined forces in backing the election of Gail Cook for Activities Director. Fifteen lovely pledges were honored at the Pledge Formal held at the Dupont Plaza. ADPi's have many memories for the year; the Mother's Club's Christmas party, Founder's Day and the installation of Mrs. Broyhill as patron, the chapter's thirty-eighth birthday party, many informal parties, luncheons, and exchanges.

ΑΕΦ

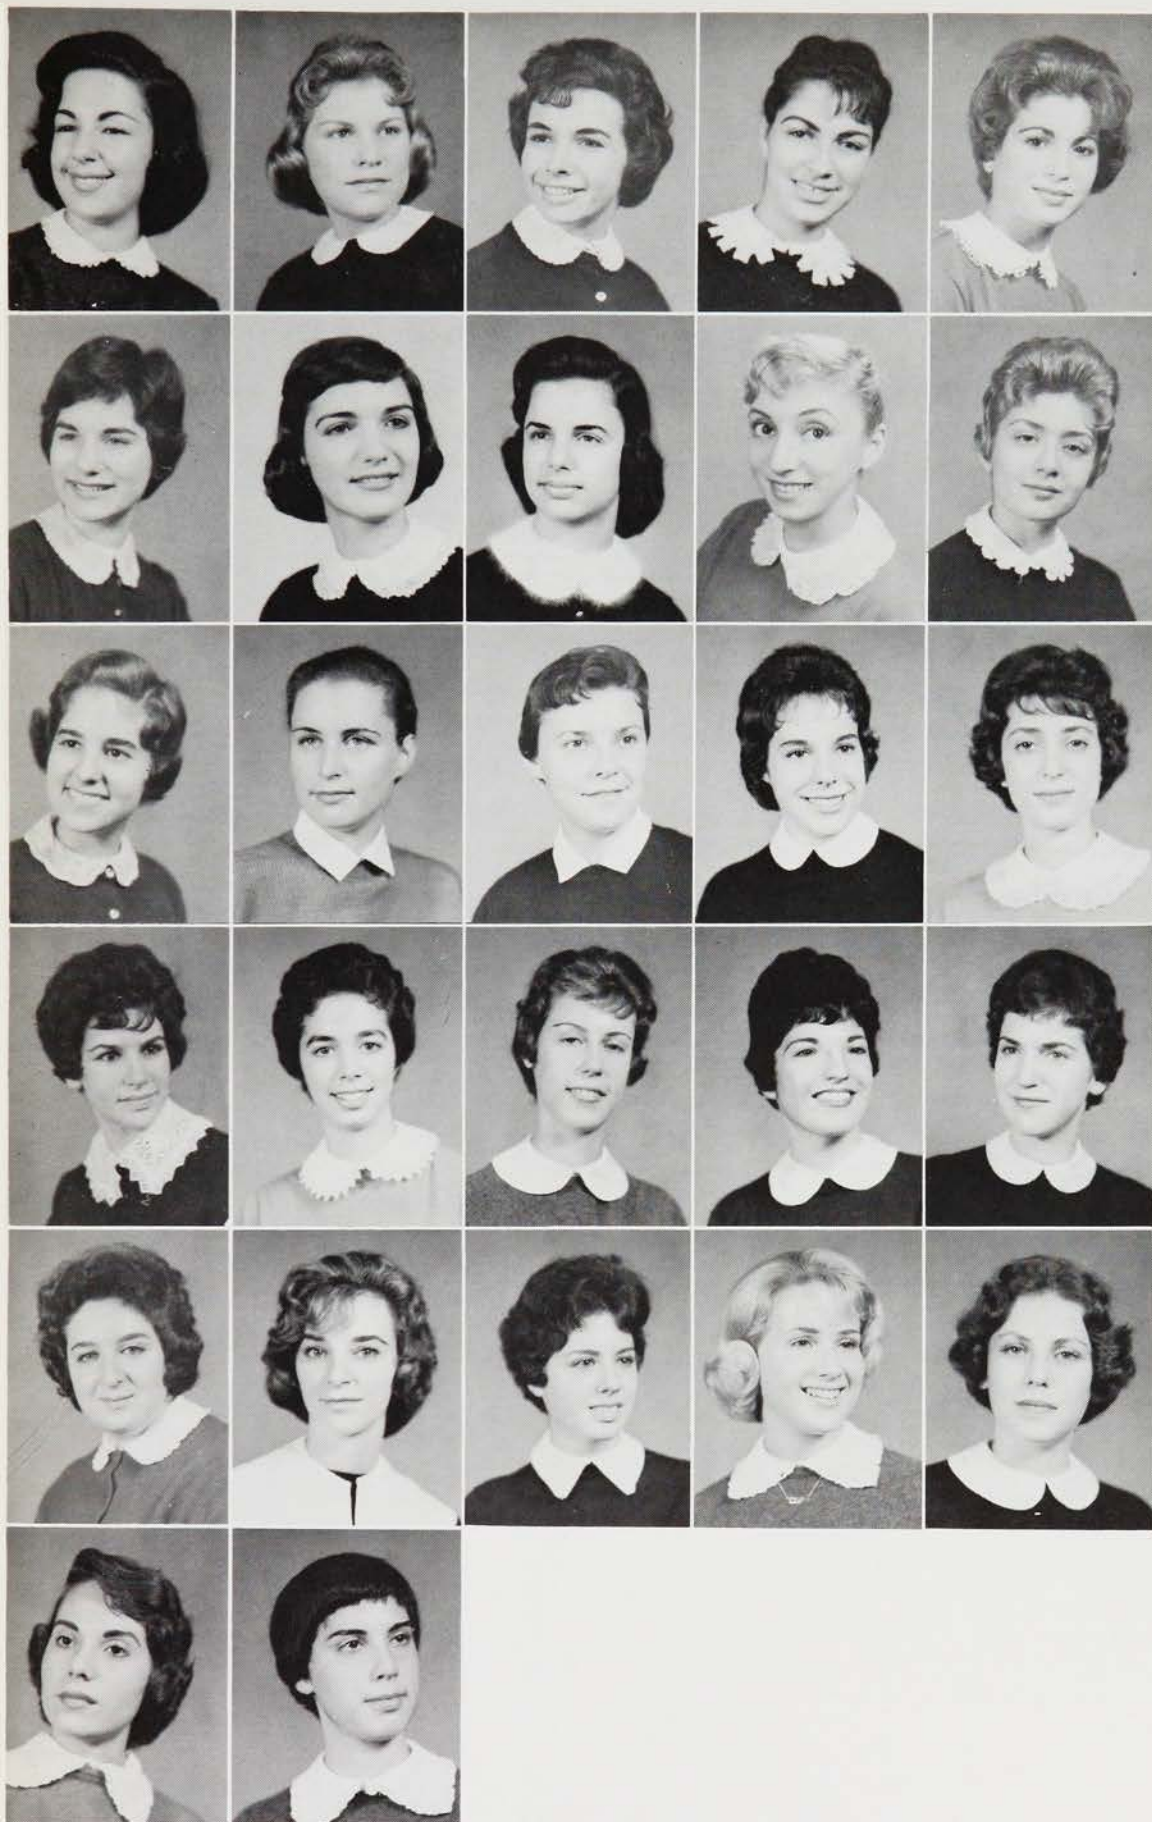

Dreamy, aren't they?

ΑΕΦι celebrated the first birthday of Alpha Gamma chapter in their new rooms shortly after the national sorority had its 50th anniversary at a convention in Sun Valley. The new rooms at 21st and F streets have been the center for many pledge-concentrated activities. The pledges won first place in the Goat Show and celebrated with a pajama party. Subject to pledge pranks, the pledge trainer was kidnapped. KP duty for some time afterwards kept the pledges busy. The actives restricted "Unionizing" in an attempt to keep the scholarship cup won last year. The ΑΕΦι Pledge Formal, held at the Sheraton-Park Hotel, included the crowning of Co-Dream Kings. The sisters of ΑΕΦι are unified by many informal activities such as cooking in the rooms and TV-ing. After finals, the ΑΕΦι's pack up for a vacation in Atlantic City.

Marching one by one

The girls of the X and the horse shoe started off the Fall semester by pledging 17 coeds. The new pledges tied for third place in the Goat Show. With characteristic enthusiasm, Chi Omega built the second-place Homecoming float. Another honor for the sorority was accumulating the highest number of booster points to win the first-place prize. As a Christmas project, Chi Omega "adopted" a needy family and supplied it with canned food, clothing, gifts, and a Christmas dinner. The sisters of Chi Omega stay busy with many activities, summer and winter, off and on campus—dancing for the New York Rockettes, travelling to Spain to sing with a student choral group, boosting school spirit at GW games, and acting in GW theatre productions.

Shakespeare, the Delta Gamma way

With well known "DG Spirit" the girls who wear the anchor completed another successful year. The pledge class tied for third-place in the Goat Show. With further help from the pledges, Delta Gamma won several car cavalcades. A "Let's Go 3.0" program inspired the sisters to improve their overall sorority average. Delta Gamma's Spring pledge class placed first in scholarship. At Homecoming, DG prexy Kitty Hyland received the coveted Lacy Garter. In the Panhel Sing, Delta Gamma won first place and also received the Director's Cup. Another trophy was added to the collection at Province Convention, when Beta Rho was chosen outstanding chapter in its province. A second place in Derby Day brought still another cup. A high point at the end of the year was the Delta Gamma Spring Party, at which the DG's chose their Anchor Man.

The DZ Rose Formal

Right after Fall formal rush, the chapter began racking up Booster Points by participating in pep rallies and car cavalcades. On Founder's Day, which was shared with the alumnae, Alpha Delta's nomination for the 1959 Delta Zeta Woman of the Year was presented. At Homecoming, Delta Zeta was represented by a Queen candidate and a float. Christmas was highlighted by a slumber party in the rooms. Pre-initiation festivities found the pledges entertaining the actives with a skit, which showed the actives what they would be in twenty years. After initiation, the chapter gave a tea honoring its helpful alumnae. The girls participated enthusiastically in Panhellenic Weekend with a party in the sorority rooms before the Prom, and a breakfast after the dance. The steak-and-beans dinner honored the chapter scholars. Coffee hours and exchanges rounded out the social calendar.

The morning after

As pledge number 13 and sorority mascot, "Theta Cat" received the black and gold ribbons after formal rush. In the fall, this Theta mascot witnessed many sorority activities such as the Delt raids, water fights, and kidnappings before Goat Show. The Cat was guest at the pledges' surprise Halloween party for the actives. She also attended the all-night party after Pledge Formal, and the several wedding showers held in Theta's spacious lounge. The KAT's themselves are noted for pancake panorama "coffee hours," continuous bridge games, a slumber party before Colonial Cruise, and their five redheaded pledges. Whether playing with the mascot in the rooms, escaping from fraternity pranksters through the KD rooms, or stepping through the Kite at their Pledge Formal, the Kappa Alpha Thetas always have high spirits and are ever open to new ideas for parties or pranks.

Snow White in KD style

Identical white dresses with green sashes and newly decorated rooms were distinctive of the KD's during rush. Activities centered around the 17 pledges during the Fall. Goat Show came with "sleep-time" rehearsals and cha-cha breaks. Car cavalcades, Homecoming parade and pep rallies kept the pledges busy and gave them a winning spirit. Prank ideas emerged, but Mother Gussin somehow remained safe in her activities office. Christmas brought the familiar seals project and the annual Mother-Daughter party. A lovely White Rose Week preceded initiation. Sing rehearsals were attended by numerous coffee cups and monotones. Spring found the entire chapter in keen competition to keep their prized ISAB trophy, while pledges "volunteered" for Derby Day. After the Senior party and finals, the KD's packed their white dresses until September and headed for Ocean City.

A sharp and three flats, The Four Keys

Kappa Kappa Gamma is known for tradition, from its white rose to the annual Open House for all University men. The newly-decorated Kappa rooms are the scene of many luncheons and chapter dinners. The KKG's and the Pikes annually enjoy a football game, and at the Delt exchanges, the Kappas compete in skit presentations. A proud pledge class placed first in scholastic competition, while the actives placed second. Just as the actives won second at Panhel Sing last year, this year the pledges won a cup for second place in the Goat Show. Kappa's are particularly vocal. Several of the sisters are members of the Travelling Troubadours. Four KKG's have formed the "Four Keys," a group which performs at many University and off-campus functions.

Goat Show antics

The home of the Phi Sigma Sigma's is at 21st and H Streets. Occupying the second floor, the sisters of Phi Sigma Sigma are in close contact with the Business Administration Department downstairs. These sorority girls are still trying to find some means of installing an elevator in the building. Other house troubles for the Phi Sigma Sigma Chapter at GW include fuses which blow out every time there is a social. Phi Sigma Sigma's Fall rush this year was climaxed by the pledging of 22 coeds. Since the pledge trainer was student teaching, the pledges found themselves helping her with elementary school art. The sisters won third place in the Intramural Speech Contest. Led by President Letty Katz, of Phi Beta Kappa and Mortar Board fame, the chapter won the Phi Sigma Sigma Achievement Award in its division.

"Bear down and Freeze 'Em," winning float in the Homecoming Parade

Pi Beta Phi, the oldest sorority on campus, has been active at GW since 1889. The group began the year of 1959 by winning third place in the Panhel Sing. Brainstorming and lots of hard work went into its prize-winning Homecoming Float, called "Bear Down and Freeze 'Em." Many of the girls who wear the arrow were to win reknown for Pi Beta Phi at GW. Miss Ann Hardy, one of the twelve Pi Phi pledges, was chosen "Miss Model Pledge." Tania Akhonin was chosen to be a guide to the U. S. Exposition in Moscow. She had much to tell upon her return to GW last Fall. Pi Phi is well represented in campus honoraries as well as organizations. Various members cite Phi Beta Kappa, Mortar Board, Who's Who, and Tassels among their personal laurels.

ΣK

Sh, mum's the word

The Zeta chapter of Sigma Kappa has been active at GW since 1906. The Sigma Kappa national sorority was founded at Colby College, Waterville, Maine. There are now ninety-seven active chapters. During this year, Sigma Kappa merged nationally with Pi Kappa Sigma. Founder's Day was celebrated in November with the Beta Zeta Chapter at Maryland. Knowledge is the key note for the SK's at GW. Both the actives and the pledges received second-place trophies for scholastic averages. Dee Anne Pletoch won the trophy for the upper-class pledge with the highest QPI. Angela Gnotta was elected to Phi Beta Kappa. The sorority has contributed five members to Tassels, six to Alpha Theta Nu and three to Alpha Lambda Delta.

Spring was busy for the girls of ZTA. The Zeta's placed second in Derby Day. Pledge Dottie Nelson was chosen "Miss Venus." Zeta winners of the "Tar and Feather" contest were covered with molasses for days. Thanks to chapter campaigning, Maggie Cannon was elected Freshman Director. For Easter vacation, some of the group drove to Fort Lauderdale. They found the Florida sun all it's supposed to be, and now plan to make the trip an annual event. Open House for the University with a modern jazz combo was held at the National Airport. Twelve new pledges were guests of honor at the annual Pledge Formal. Founder's Day was celebrated with alumnae at the Ted Lewis Restaurant. Throughout the year, many of the fraternities were the grateful recipients of Fried Chicken Lunches prepared by the Zetas.

WANDERING GREEKS

The Chapter: S. Roberts, L. Griffin, P. Murphy, C. Waters, A. Bradford.

Wandering Greeks is made up of transfer students, members of National Panhellenic sororities which do not have chapters at GW. Founded in 1956, this organization provides a sorority relationship, a home away from home, these students would otherwise miss. The Wandering Greeks Room is at 2131 G Street. This year's participation in campus activities included candidates for Homecoming and Cherry Tree Queens, entertainment at the Panhellenic Sing, and a team in the Sigma Chi Derby Day. The Wandering Greeks won first place in their division in the Homecoming Float Contest with their roving-eyed green bug. Members of Wandering Greeks belong to Panhellenic Council, Delphi, Emanon, Travelling Troubadours, and Dorm Council. Social events of the year include an annual Christmas Party and a Spring Cocktail Party. This year, the Wandering Greeks, showing their true intersorority spirit, gave Christmas Candles to each GW sorority.

"ISAB athletics keep us healthy and vivacious."

The Inter-Sorority Athletic Board sponsors tournaments between women's Greek organizations on campus. The board, which plans and co-ordinates these tournaments, is composed of one delegate from each sorority and Wandering Greeks. The purpose of ISAB is to promote competition in athletics among the sororities. It holds tournaments in tennis, volley ball, badminton, table tennis, golf, bowling, swimming, and bridge. At the bi-annual Women's Athletic Association banquets, cups are awarded the winning Greeks in each tournament. At the spring Banquet, the rotating Inter-Sorority Athletic Board cup is awarded to the Greek organization which has won the largest number of tournaments.

FIRST Row: E. Warfield, President; J. Keller, P. Kerman, M. Herr, G. Gregor. SECOND Row: J. Grubbs, Mrs. George, N. Byrd, K. Koester, J. Crow, L. Transtrum, P. Tyler.

PANHELLENIC COUNCIL

The Panhellenic Council co-ordinates sorority activity on campus. Comprised of the President and one delegate from each sorority and the Wandering Greeks, Panhel is responsible for administrative, legislative and judicial duties in GW Greek circles. The Council makes and enforces rushing and pledging procedures, as well as dealing with orientation activities for new women students. Panhel recognizes scholastic achievement by awarding trophies to the pledge group and the active chapter which has maintained the highest QPI for the semester and to the four graduating senior women with the highest average for six semesters at GW. Every Spring, Panhellenic Council sponsors a Panhellenic Weekend. On Friday, member groups compete in the Panhellenic Sing and on Saturday, the sororities enjoy a Formal Prom.

Panhel Board: J. Ormsby, A. Smith, President; A. Kellogg, J. Crumlish.

FIRST Row: A. Smith, President; A. Kellogg, J. Crumlish, C. Fischgrund, J. Ginbergo. SECOND Row: L. Baumann, G. Cook, M. Hoffman, Miss Kirkbride, J. Ormsby. THIRD Row: K. Palic, K. Schaligter, D. Lund, M. Mitchell, S. Ford.

JUNIOR PANHELLENIC COUNCIL

FIRST Row: B. Fallan, R. Ferrara, A. Garfield, C. Carlson, M. Large. SECOND Row: Miss Olsen, C. Newell, S. Swann, J. Ormsby, D. Williams, President; P. Koines, M. Simon.

The Junior Panhellenic Council works closely with its senior organization for friendship and cooperation among the sorority pledge classes. The council is composed of one delegate from each pledge class and the Vice-President of Panhellenic Council. Planning and publicizing Goat Show is one of Junior Panhel's main activities. At the annual Goat Show, sorority pledge classes compete in presenting short skits on the Lisner stage. Junior Panhellenic Council also sponsors a poster contest to publicize the Goat Show. In addition, Junior Panhel promotes and recognizes scholastic achievement by awarding cups to the Freshman and upperclass pledges with the highest QPT's.

FRATERNITIES

That's what we like, togetherness

Dick Wills receives the Director's Cup at the IFC Sing.

One of the first things a rushman wants to know about a fraternity is what it costs to join. He's not getting the right answer if someone just talks to him about dollars and cents. The true cost of fraternity membership, as any good Greek will tell you, goes far beyond the financial. Brotherhood costs each fraternity member time, work, and devotion. But then there's something else the rushman should know. If he chooses to join a fraternity, there will be no other place in his college life that will give him back so much for what he puts in. The bonds of fraternity brotherhood, strong in college years, hold on throughout life.

INTERFRATERNITY COUNCIL

FIRST ROW: K. Larish, Dr. Faith, B. Kaplan, President; H. Jones. SECOND ROW: P. Mechem, R. Armstrong, J. Vogt, P. Ennis, W. Halter, C. Mays. THIRD ROW: R. Carroll, J. Ostrow, S. Newmann.

The Inter-Fraternity Council is composed of one delegate from each fraternity. IFC oversees all inter-fraternity projects, sets up and enforces rush rules, and orients new frat-minded freshmen. IFC's social calendar opens before rush with the IFC Smoker, and it is highlighted by Greek Week in the Spring. During Greek Week, all houses are open for party-hopping. IFC forums for officers of member fraternities promote better relations between the groups. The high points of Greek Week are the IFC Sing, in which the fraternities emit sweet tones in competition, and the IFC Prom, which is preceded and followed by many gay parties.

The melting pot of miscellaneous Greeks and wayward youth in general, The Student Union.

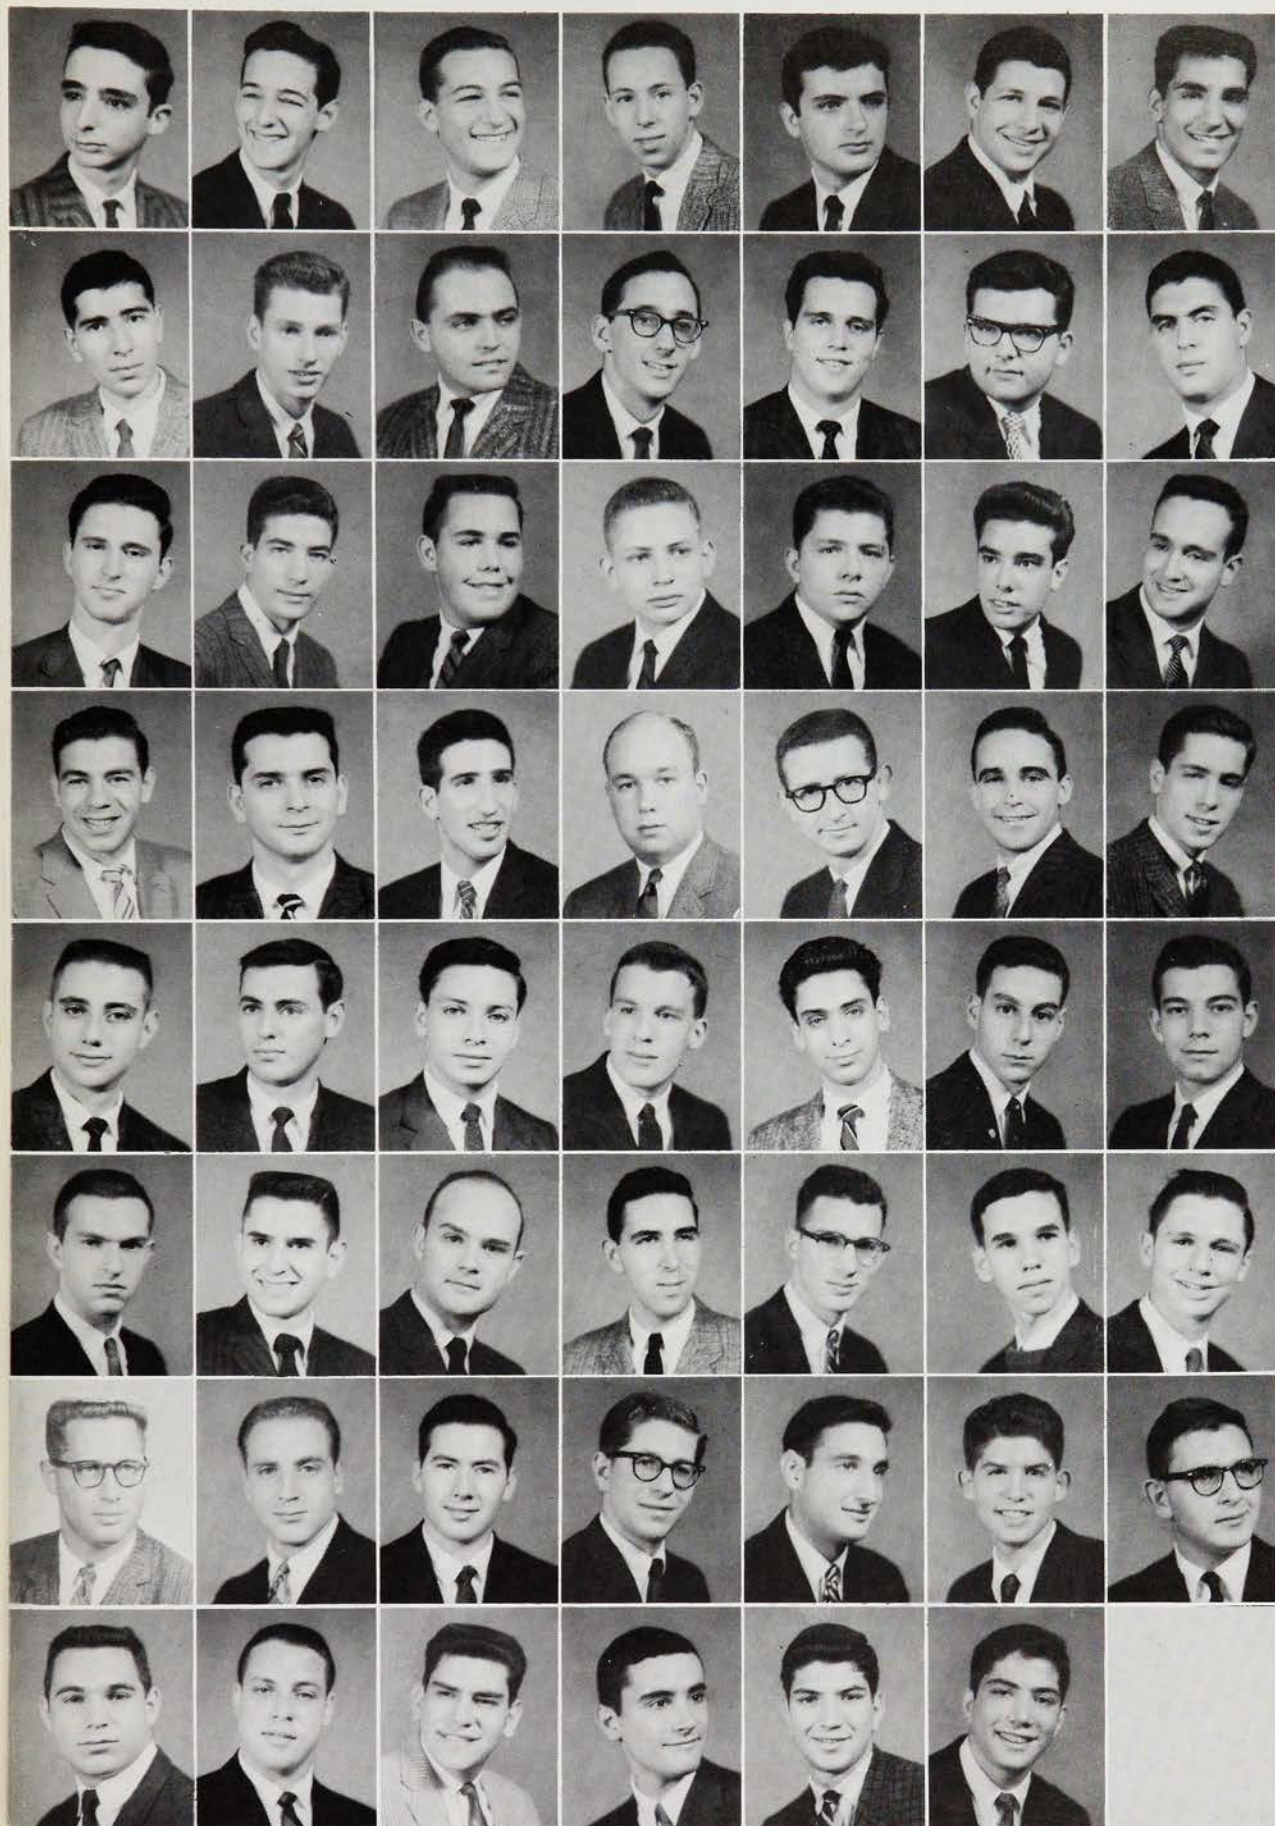

AET

Fall found the largest fraternity on campus getting the largest pledge class in the history of GW. This success in rush was not a surprise to a chapter that had already won national awards for extra-curricular activities and high scholarship as well as GW's scholarship award. At Homecoming, the AEPi's boasted of the "ugliest float in the whole University," and at the dance more AEPi tables, with more people under them, than any other fraternity. In fraternity intramurals, they took first place last year and have received many, many trophies, some of which they won. A standing joke in the house and on campus is their IFC singers, who are constantly trying to improve. When the pledges impersonate the actives at their annual party, they get good-humored response from the brothers of AEPi. This Spring the boys sponsored their regional conclave. Shortly before the end of finals came the annual Blow-Off Ball.

"Good evening, Mr. Murrow, won't you come in?"

While waiting for a new house to be finished, the Delts were busy on campus. Led by Chuck Johnson, they copped second place in the IFC sing. Another trophy was added as the Delts placed third in scholastic competition among fraternities. DTD, one of the top competitors in intramurals, won first place in bowling and second place in softball. Credit goes to the pledges for winning several car cavalcades. Pistols, buckets and pails were among the weapons used in the traditional water fight between the Thetas and the Delts. At the annual Rainbow Ball, Liz McGarry was chosen Sweetheart of Delta Tau Delta. Pine paneling, pink powder-room, new furnishings and lots of space are only a few of the new attractions of the fraternity's rebuilt home on G Street. At a house-warming ceremony, the Delts welcomed faculty, alumni and students to Delta Halls.

"I wish the Alums would get us a bigger house."

Hoisting "dem Phi Sig Colors."

The Phi Sigs again met with great success in their Miss Model Pledge Contest. Three representatives from each pledge class competed for the honor during an evening of entertainment at the house on New Hampshire Avenue. Besides exchanges and TGIF's, the Phi Sig social calendar included the Farmers' Day Ball, a South Sea Island Party, and the Spring Carnation Ball. At the annual Christmas Formal, Miss Ginger Thomas was selected "Moonlight Girl." The twenty-eight pledges of Phi Sigma Kappa turned out to be an active bunch one night when they captured their trainer and put him in a straight jacket. The Phi Sigs gained more distinction with their initiation of Senator Long of Hawaii. A cocktail party was held in honor of the Senator after his initiation. Another high spot was the Homecoming Float Contest, in which Phi Sig received second-place cup.

An All-American group gathered for an innocent frolic

The Pikes, settled at 1912 G Street, opened the New Year with their annual New Year's Eve party. At the traditional Rainbow Ball, held this year at the Potomac Boat Club, Miss Mary Lou McCracken was chosen to reign as "Dream Girl" for 1959. Throughout the year the Pikes were host at the ever-popular TGIF's. The Pike doors were opened to the University at the fraternity's annual open house. Clever party decorations were displayed and admired at the revival of the Shipwreck Ball. Besides partying, several brothers found time for campus activities: politics, athletics, honoraries and photography. With the close of the school year in May, the fraternity staged a mass exodus to Ocean City. There they continued to live up to their reputation of being a great partying group.

"Now let's all go upstairs and play Hide-in-the-Closet."

The oldest fraternity on campus, Sigma Alpha Epsilon began its second century at GW with a 21-member pledge class. An effective study program inspired the brothers to new scholastic heights, but the finer aspects of college life were not ignored. In fraternity intramurals, SAE won third place. The brothers carried away another third in the IFC Sing. Socially, the Champagne Christmas Party and the Spring Formal were notably successful. The yearly Pre-Ocean City Party was more spirited than ever. Amidst the festivity, the house lost its front porch wall. The Sig Alpha's are well represented on campus in activities and honoraries—Student Council, Who's Who, Order of Scarlet, Hatchet, CHERRY TREE, and varsity sports, are all on the list. One particularly renowned SAE is Gindratt, the canine brother, who was "initiated" into the chapter in 1949. This brother, like many others, is always on hand to welcome friends to the 1824 19th-Street house.

Sigma Chi's secret weapon

The fraternity of the white cross and the famous song has enough in tradition alone to appeal to rushmen. The brothers of Sigma Chi offer fellowship, leadership, and scholarship. The Sigs were very prominent Homecoming Weekend. They sponsored the Queen, Dottie Williams, and placed third in the Float parade. With several brothers on the football team, the fraternity could be justly proud of its part in GW's efforts against Navy. Sigma Chi's Halloween Hayride is a unique event, and their annual Derby Day in April is both anxiously awaited and feared by the sorority participants. All through the year, the Sig house is well known as the scene of frequent Sailing Club and Foggy Bottom Sports Car Club meetings. The members are well known in numerous campus activities and claim top positions in several men's organizations.

Sigma Nu's meet Brother Johnny Long at Homecoming

Founded in military tradition at VMI, Sigma Nu has been at GW for 45 years. This centrally located fraternity is active in many phases of campus life. Socially, their annual events range from parties in the "Snake Pit," to the White Rose Dinner Dance at the Shoreham, to the Frontier Ball out in the country. Sigma Nu's are known for their take-offs on girls dating at the house, their frequent serenades, and their dinners served in the basement. On campus, spirited competition marks the brothers as much as their black and gold ribbons mark them at all formal functions. Sigma Nu's placed first in both IFC Sing and the Homecoming Float Parade. Their odorous skunk will not soon be forgotten. Pledge study sessions and tutoring system helped to win the scholarship improvement cup last year. Proud of alumni on the Hill, Sigma Nu hopes to have Life coverage of this year's annual Congressional reception sponsored by the boys wearing the familiar White Star.

The Sig Ep Queen of Hearts and her court

Red bow ties during rush, red vests at parties, and red tuxes at IFC Prom mark the brothers of the House with a Heart. To begin the year, the chapter hosted the fiftieth-year conclave of the fraternity, which has the second largest number of chapters. The house's basement with its nightclub atmosphere is the scene of everything from beatnick exchanges to the Christmas semi-formal. The parlor, boasting a new coat-of-arms, is used for both cocktail parties and Goat Show rehearsals. At one of these rehearsals, KD pledges kidnapped SPE President Chet Gray. The frat's large patio opens in the Fall with rush and in the spring with a TGIF party. Here midnight basketball games are played for the amusement of neighboring hotel guests. Tickets on cars in the alley, caricatures on the basement walls, and love of hi-fi sounds characterize the brothers behind the red door.

"Ein, zwei, drei, vier lift your stein."

The year got off to a bang-up start for GW's Tau Epsilon Phi chapter. Not only did they win the campus combo award for the third straight year, but they also received the outstanding chapter award from their national officers. To begin TEP's social season, the brothers invited all University women to their Playboy Party. As the year got under way, the 24 new pledges gave their traditional party, highlighted by impersonations of the actives. Another annual party, the Vice-Versa, found the brothers dressed as girls with their dates wearing the pants for the night. In December, the Sweetheart dance was held at the Occidental. At the beginning of the second semester, the TEP's installed a new kitchen. In May, the chapter headed for the Chesapeake for their Spring weekend to close another jolly-good year.

"Two no-trump and while you're at it, pass the Sea and Ski."

With 159 chapters, TKE is one of the largest national social fraternities. Originating as "The Knights of Classic Lore" in 1899, Tau Kappa Epsilon has a national, as well as a local, tradition of scholarship and scholarly pursuits. Interesting intellectual meetings held by GW's chapter this year included speakers from the Voice of America, the White House, and several embassies. All of TKE's activities were not scholarly, however. The Tekeskellar is a favorite rendezvous for refreshing beverages. The Triangle Ball in the spring and Beethoven's Birthday Party were festive occasions. One of TKE's important honors is the "Bird Dog of the Year" award. The fraternity's own newspaper, The New Capital Teke, is a unique Greek endeavor. Study, cooperation, fellowship, and fun were the group's unifying goals for the year.

May, 1959, marked the national union of Phi Alpha and Phi Sigma Delta. Phi Alpha was the only national fraternity founded on the GW campus. The chapter's new location on campus is 2141 G Street. While Phi Sigma Delta is enthusiastic about new plans, many old traditions remain. For the annual Christmas Project, this year, the brothers collected canned goods, food, toys and other items for a needy family in Washington. Spring Weekend for Phi Sigma Delta was the highlight of the year. It was marked by a weinie-roast, followed by a Dinner Dance. One high honor was awarded the group by a non-campus organization. The fraternity gave a "Playboy Formal Party" and won the National Playboy contest. In another field, Phi Sigma Delta was rated second on campus scholastically.

A bit of revelry at the old Kappa Sig house

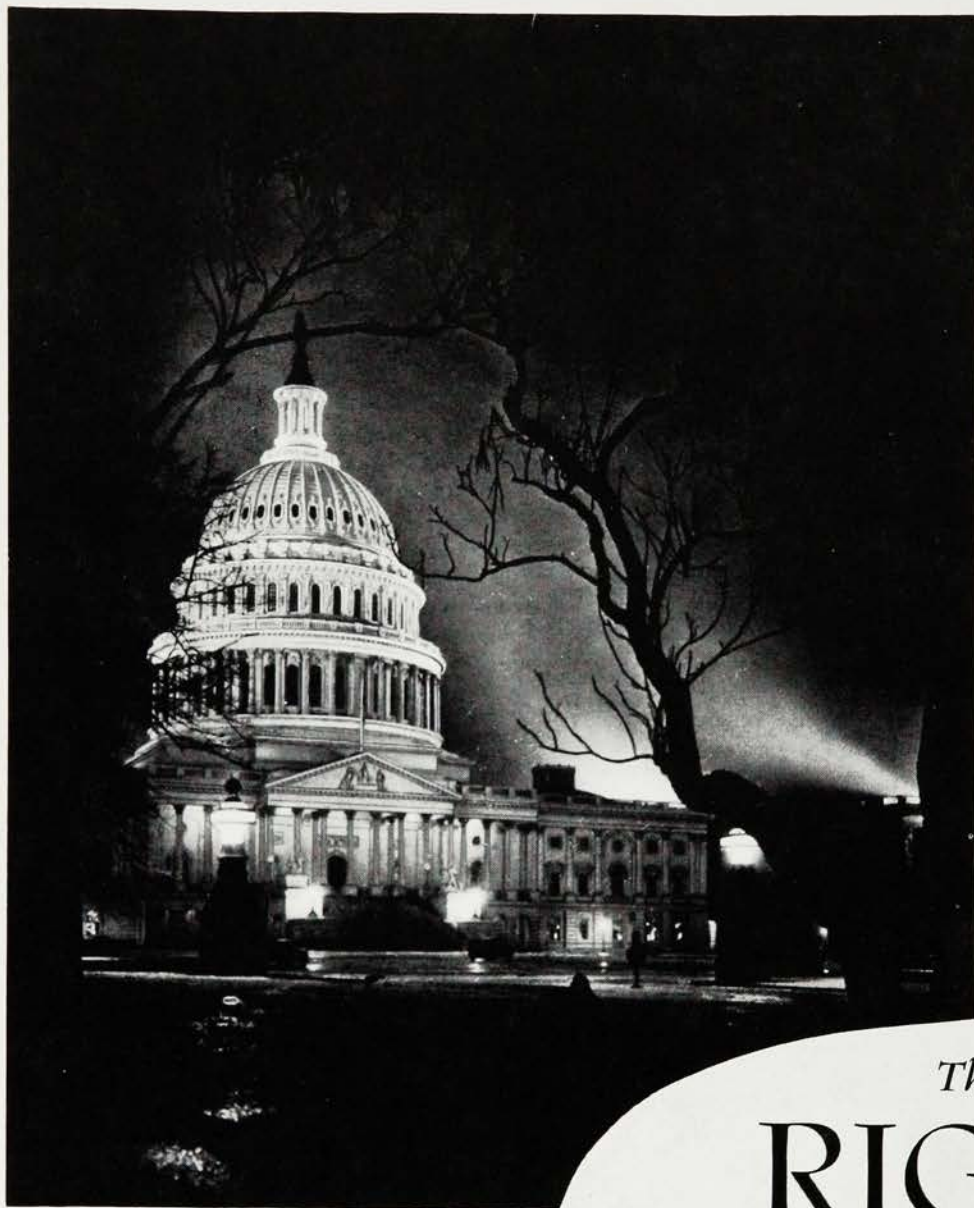

A strong national fraternity, with 132 active chapters, Kappa Sigma was founded at the University of Virginia in 1869. George Washington University has had a Kappa Sig chapter since 1892. The big project for 1960 is to move from Pennsylvania Avenue to a new house on campus. Activities and fraternity functions included rush, exchanges, Fall football trips and a Christmas dance. The Spring semester was highlighted by the Stardust Ball at which the Kappa Sig Sweetheart was crowned. Stag movies provided light entertainment on quiet weekends. On campus, Kappa Sigma brothers are seen in drama club productions, IFC, and the Pep Band. After finals, Kappa Sigma leads the way in the evacuation to the Rest Center at Ocean City.
